The COUNCIL of the CAMDEN SOCIETY desire it to be understood that they are not answerable for any opinions or observations that may appear in the Society's publications; the Editors of the several works being alone responsible for the same.

PREFACE.

SOME years ago, while engaged on my edition of the Paston Letters, I was anxious to examine as far as possible every original source of information for the reigns of Henry VI. and Edward IV.; and, having found some unedited matter relating to those reigns in two MSS. in the Lambeth Library, I recommended them to the Council of the Camden Society for publication. My proposal was at once agreed to; but in the meantime, a more interesting MS. having presented itself relating to the same period, the work was kept back to make way for The Historical Collections of a Citizen of London, which appeared in 1876. I have, however, steadily kept in view the fulfilment of my original promise to the Society; and the result is that I have been led to do somewhat more than I originally contemplated. For it will be seen that the present volume, besides containing contributions from the two Lambeth MSS. above referred to, includes an unpublished chronicle of the same period, from a MS. in the College of Arms. Moreover, I had scarcely begun to examine the work seriously, when I found that it was quite impossible to omit the bulk of John Stowe's Memoranda in the Lambeth MS. 306; and, although they extend to a much later period, these also have been inserted.

But I must now speak of this MS. more particularly, as it furnishes the greater part of the materials of this work.

MS. 306 in the Lambeth Library is a stout folio volume in an ancient ornamental binding, now very much worm-eaten. The back has been renewed ; but the two wooden boards covered with stamped leather preserve their original appearance. The clasps, however, which once held them together, are gone, the brass nails alone remaining in the one cover, and part of the ornamental fittings on which they clasped still existing in the other. The design on each cover consists of lozenge-shaped compartments filled with foliated ornaments and a framework parallel with the edges, in which the Beaufort portcullis, a branch of oak with acorns, a crowned lion and a dragon, are discernible. It is quite evidently a Tudor binding.

The contents of the volumes are various in character. The handwritings are partly of the fifteenth and partly of the sixteenth century. The short Chronicle printed in this volume stands at the beginning. It was probably penned in the reign of Edward IV. not long after the date to which it comes down. Marginal notes, however, have been added to the text in a hand of Henry VIII.'s time, and the text itself is occasionally corrected with additions and insertions in the same hand. Where these corrections are important they will be found noted in footnotes in this volume. The same writing also can be traced in a number of other articles throughout the volume, chiefly of the nature of medical receipts, and in some notes on the inside of the cover, which refer to the dates of events as late as the middle of the reign of Henry VIII. It must have been during the time of this penman that the MS. was bound ; for several of his marginal notes in the chronicle are mutilated, owing to the edges of the paper having been cut by the binder ; yet it is clear that he wrote the memoranda inside the cover after the book was bound.

The Short Chronicle, though it looks like one, is really three short chronicles written or transcribed consecutively by the same pen. The first is a very brief abridgment of the well-known Chronicle of the Brute, beginning the history of Albion with the fabled Albina, and ending in the first year of Henry IV. This composition, it is almost needless to say, is absolutely destitute of historical value; but as "the Brute" itself has never yet been edited, and is consequently inaccessible to all but students of black letter and readers of mediæval MSS., this epitome of what was once the most popular history of England may not be without interest. One point which may strike the reader as curious, and which might even be worth a little investigation, if any one could afford to spend some time in the comparison of various MSS., is the considerable addition here made, through transcribers' errors and otherwise, to the list of mythical kings in Geoffrey of Monmouth. Thus we have "Gynder" instead of "Guiderus," "Grandobodian" instead of "Gorbonian," "Hesydere" for "Elidurus," "Higamus" for "Vigenius," and a number of other aliases which are certainly quite as legitimate names as their prototypes for utterly unreal personages. The most curious transformation perhaps is that of Aurelius Ambrosius into Aurylambos.

Immediately following the abridged "Brute" we have a copy of Lydgate's verses on the Kings of England, showing some slight variations from the text printed in the "Collections of a London Citizen."

After which comes one of the regular city chronicles, beginning with the keepers and bailiffs of London in the time of Richard I., and a register of mayors and sheriffs from the first institution of the mayoralty in the time of King John. It is in this composition, and of course in the latter part of it only, that the real historical value of the work consists; for down to the reign of Henry V. the record of each mayor's year is a very bald one, and contains nothing that is not found elsewhere. The catalogue of civic officers itself however may possibly be of some slight value; for amid the many corruptions of names given more correctly elsewhere appear to be some genuiue aliases, such as the name of Richard Soperlane, sheriff in the 27th year of Edward I., who is commonly known as Richard de Refham.

Opposite the name of each mayor are given in the margin, as shown during the reign of King John at pages 32 and 33, the year of our Lord corresponding to his year of office, and a Roman numeral in the case of mayors who had served more than once, indicating whether it was for the first, second, third, or what later time he was then mayor; but, as these numbers are added by a different hand, and are moreover practically useless and often very inaccurate, I have not thought it necessary to give more than a specimen of them at the beginning.

It does not appear that this chronicle has ever been referred to as a source of historical information. Yet the MS. seems at one time to have belonged to Stowe the Chronicler, who has made copious memoranda on the blank leaves of the volume. There are also pencilled notes in some places in a hand of the time of James I. or Charles I., showing that it had attracted the attention of at least one antiquary in that age of historical research. But beyond this we have no evidence that it has been consulted by any one, and even Stowe has not made such use of it in his Chronicle that we can distinctly say he derived his information on any point from this one particular source. In fact it seems rather as if he had found little in it that he could make use of save what was common to this and other chronicles, and therefore neglected to refer to it.

Such might very well have been the impression even of a great historical collector in those days, whose aim was rather to obtain a complete outline of English history than to fill in details and illustrative matter. Nevertheless the latter part of this chronicle has all the value of an original and independent authority for the reigns of Henry VI. and Edward IV., at least from the time of Jack Cade's rebellion to the year of Edward's marriage with Elizabeth Woodville, in which it comes to an end. And on careful examination it will be found that this chronicle contains facts of some importance that have been passed over by other writers, to some of which I have already called attention in other publications. For one thing, this chronicle states positively as a fact a thing which is not set forth in any of our histories, and which I myself maintained several years ago only as a matter of inference, viz. that Cade's pardon was invalidated in consequence of the discovery that his real name was not Mortimer;^a so that it would seem his pretence of high birth was generally believed in till after the insurrection in London had been appeased. There is certainly something marvellous in the fact that he was able to maintain false pretensions so long—especially when we consider the formidable dimensions of the movement in which he took the lead. It was not only that all the gentry of Kent followed his standard, but even the King's own followers told him plainly, that, unless execution were done upon the traitors who were so unpopular, they too would desert to the captain.^b The misgovernment that provoked the insurrection was, in fact, generally felt to justify pretty strong measures by way of remonstrance. But, this being so, the wonder is all the greater that the remonstrants should have put themselves under the leadership of a man whose true character was so ill

^a Fortnightly Review, New Series, xlvi. 448. I was able, however, afterwards to cite the positive testimony of this chronicle in the Introduction to the first volume of the Paston Letters, p. lv.

^b "And the Kinge came to the Blacke Hethe with his lordys. They hiryng of this jorney anone the lordis meyne went togeder and said, but the kynge wolde do excussyon on suche traytors as were named, else they wolde turne to the capteyn of Kent." (p. 67.)

known to them. That there must have been collusion on the part of some of the Kentish gentry seems past a doubt. By setting up a pretender they avoided incurring the highest responsibility themselves.

Little need be said about minute details, such as the disputed question whether Cardinal Kemp went along with Bishop Waynflete to the interview with Cade at Southwark after the battle on London Bridge. This is the statement in Hall's Chronicle, but as Fabyan, an earlier authority, states that the cardinal, being then Lord Chancellor, sent pardons under the great seal to Cade and his followers, it seemed doubtful whether Hall was not here in error. Our chronicle, however, confirms Hall's statement.

"And forthe withe went the Chaunseler to the capteyne and sessed him and yave him a chartur and his men another, and so [they] withdrowe hem homward."

It has also been a point of controversy among local antiquaries whether Cade was captured in Sussex or in Kent. Of course Iden's jurisdiction as Sheriff of Kent did not extend into Sussex; and this fact may have led to a general impression that he was taken in Kent. Thus in the text of our chronicle it was originally written:—

"And so the xiiij day of Jule John Cade was take in Kentt."

But the Tudor corrector had certainly obtained more perfect information on the subject, and altered the passage thus:—

"And so one Alexandre Iden, a squire of Kent, toke hym in a garden yn Sowthsex, the xiiij day of Jule."

In fact there seems little doubt that even if Iden was at this time really Sheriff of Kent (which is scarcely probable, all things considered, within a fortnight after the murder of Sheriff Crowmer^a)

^a William Wyreestre, after mentioning the retreat of the rebels to Rochester, says only, "Et super hoc postea eodem anno Alexander Iden factus est in officio vicecomitis."

he pursued the traitor a considerable distance into the neighbouring county.

The English Chronicle, edited for the Camden Society by Mr. Davies, says distinctly that Cade was pursued into "the wood country beside Lewes;" and Gregory states that he was captured in the Weald of Sussex.^a But without going quite so far south as Lewes local traditions and other evidences seem to show that he was apprehended in a garden at Heathfield, in the very middle of the county.^b

It is important to observe that the alteration in the text here made by the Tudor corrector is in exact agreement with Fabyan's Chronicle, and very likely Fabyan was the authority he relied on. Nevertheless the exact date of Cade's capture, which Fabyan did not know, is supplied even by the original text of our chronicle, and is preserved by the corrector.

In the 33rd year of Henry VI. we meet with the following piece of information :—

"And this yere the Kyng of Scottys with the rede face layde sege to Berwyke bothe by water and londe. But he was dryve thensse, and all his ordenaunce and vitayle that was on the watir syde lefte behynde them."

King James II. of Scotland, as we are informed by Lesley, "was called James withe the firyce face, be ressoun of ane bread reid spott quhilk he had upon ane of his cheikis."^c But I find no mention of this siege of Berwick in any other old chronicle, except this Lambeth MS. It is however confirmed by some minutes in the Privy Council Proceedings.^d

^a Collections of a London Citizen, 194.

^b The question whether the capture took place in Kent or Sussex is very fully discussed in Furlley's History of the Weald of Kent, ii. 386-396; where the author, notwithstanding his original prepossession in favour of Kent, decides that it must have been in Sussex.

^c Lesley's Hist. of Scotland, 11.

In the 34th year also we meet with a new fact, viz. the arrest of an alderman and mercer of London named Cauntelowe, who was summoned before the King's Council and imprisoned, as an accessory in the attack on the houses of the Italian merchants. This is, doubtless, the William Cantelowe who afterwards captured Henry VI. in a wood, and brought him to King Edward.^a He is mentioned in various accounts before this date as having dealings with the Crown, at one time as conveying money over sea for bringing Queen Margaret to England, at another time for supplying the Castle of Cherbourg with gunpowder when it was in the hands of the English.^b

The outrage in which Cantelowe was accused of taking part was one of those occasional outbursts of jealousy and dislike towards foreigners which are met with at intervals in the early annals of London. The circumstances of the case are related by Fabyan, and the execution of two of the rioters is alluded to in the Paston Letters.^c But some addition has recently been made to our knowledge of the matter by the publication of Gregory's Chronicle^d and the Calendar of Venetian State Papers.^e The formidable character of the outbreak may be judged from the fact that the Italian merchants were compelled to quit London, and take up their abode at Winchester and Southampton. Their withdrawal in all probability produced a sensible effect upon the commerce of the city; for they made a bye-law among themselves, that no individual merchant of Northern Italy should henceforth go to London and trade there. This ordinance the signory of Venice ratified by a decree of the Senate, and prohibited, under a heavy fine, all Venetian vessels from visiting the port of London. Nevertheless, if our chronicle be right, some of the Lombards, at least, must have returned to the city; for next year another affray between them and the mercers is recorded, which led to the arrest of eight and twenty mercers' men, who were first committed to Windsor Castle, and afterwards brought to the King's presence. But it may perhaps be doubted whether this is not a misdated account of the same riot copied from some other source.

After this, in the 37th year, we have "A great fray between the city of London and men of court, which were driven with the archers of the city from the Standard in Fleet Street to their Inns, the 13th day of April." This is another addition to our knowledge of the times. There were plenty of "frays" going on elsewhere from time to time, and even the city chroniclers forgot to tell us of this one. It is remarkable that Alderman Tayllour was summoned to Windsor to answer for it, along with some others who were implicated, and that they remained in prison till Hewlyn was mayor, when they were released at his intercession. The mayoralty of Hewlyn began in 1459, about the same time as the parliament of Coventry, in which the Yorkists were attainted. But, after a sweeping Act against great political opponents, the Court could well afford to relax its severity against a handful of citizens, whom it had already detained long in prison.

It is impossible to dwell on minute points of information supplied by this chronicle, the significance of which could only be made apparent in an elaborate history of the period. But, taken along with the other contents of this volume, it certainly adds somewhat to the meagre outline of events given by William of Worcester and Fabyan, especially in the first four years of Edward IV.—a period in which all the three MSS. here edited are more or less important. And though this chronicle, perhaps, of all the three contains the least amount of positively new matter, it may be sufficient to refer to what it says of the arrest of Henry VI. by the Earl of Warwick at Islington, to show its value as an independent authority.

A few words, perhaps, may suffice as to the other historical matter printed from the same MS. as the chronicle. Articles ranging in date from the siege of Calais by Edward III. to the middle of the reign of Queen Elizabeth certainly seem a little out of place in a volume intended mainly to illustrate fifteenth-century history. But the account of the retinues at the siege of Calais appeared not to have been printed before, and, as Stowe's memoranda and transcripts were important even for the period to which I had proposed to limit this publication, it would have been unpardonable to suppress those relating to his own time, which are the most interesting of them all.

It is quite unnecessary to expatiate on the value of these materials. The first, which is styled a proclamation made by Jack Cade, but which seems rather the declaration put forth by his followers of the causes of their revolt, is a thing of which the importance is sufficiently obvious. Yet it has never been printed at full length even by Stowe himself, though he has cited in his Chronicle another version, or perhaps another manifesto, in which some of the articles are nearly the same. The satirical dirge which follows upon Jack Napes (or the Duke of Suffolk) is also better known in another and shorter version. The account of the christening of Prince Arthur has not, I think, been published before, though another description of the same ceremony is printed in Leland's Collectanea.

These and other matters had the laborious historian carefully transcribed from older MSS. But in addition to this he has added in his own hand memoranda of occurrences which happened in his own time and mostly within his own experience. Of these a good number are recorded in his Chronicle or Book of Annals nearly in the same words; but with them are mixed up many other matters, which, either as being of less public importance or perhaps in some cases not altogether safe to comment upon, he did not think fit to print. Thus in 1562 we have an account of a certain Lady Cary (a relation of Queen Elizabeth herself, though who she was precisely I have not been able to discover) being imprisoned along with other ladies in the Fleet for allowing a priest to say mass at her house in Fetter Lane.^a This was evidently a matter on which it would not have been politic to comment, and nothing about it is found in the printed Annals. An equal silence is preserved about the attempt of the Margrave of Baden and his wife to escape in disguise from their creditors.^b No wonder, when the host of unpaid tradesmen, the butcher, baker, tailor, and such like, who endeavoured to prevent their escape, were ordered to the Fleet and the Marshalsea for their pains, that John Stowe did not see it to be his duty to record the circumstance in print!

On the religious condition of the times these memoranda of Stowe reflect very considerable light, and cannot fail to be read with interest in connection with the controversies of our own day. The accession of Queen Elizabeth, while it relieved the Protestants from the fear of Smithfield fires, undoubtedly gave a strong stimulus to that party whose object was to break entirely with the past, and destroy as far as possible the jurisdiction, rites, ceremonies, vestments, and every other external means by which reverence for the Church and faith in her doctrines had hitherto been maintained. Archdeacon Cole, preaching before the Lord Mayor, aldermen, sheriffs, and crafts of the city, could not congratulate the citizens on the cessation of the plague without attributing the infliction to the superstitious religion of Rome, which he said was so much in favour. He denounced it as a false religion, worse, he said, than that of the Turk, and even than that of the Devil. At another time he gracefully likened priests to apes, as being both bald alike, only the priests were bald before, and the apes behind.^a When such flowers of rhetoric as these, which Stowe with quiet satire records under the title "Points of Divinity," could proceed from a dignitary of the Church, who can wonder that the feeling of the common people found still more forcible expression? Clergy and laity were alike rabid with party spirit. In vain had the Queen herself issued injunctions for the decent observance of divine worship. Her orders were very generally disregarded. The London clergy were accordingly summoned to a conference at Lambeth on Tuesday, the 26th March, 1566, where they were admonished to obey, on pain of suspension from their cures; and more complete instruction was given them as to their duties by the publication of the Archbishop's celebrated "Advertisements" in the following week; but even this had very little effect. Several of the clergy flatly disobeyed both injunctions and advertisements. In the greater number of parishes parochial duty was left to the sextons; but in others the clergy themselves did service in the forbidden gowns and cloaks, and preached violently against the order taken by the Queen in Council, not forbearing to censure the bishops for yielding their consent to it. The vicar of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, went so far as to stop a funeral entering his church, because six clergymen accompanied it wearing the legal surplices. The Queen, he said, had given him the benefice for life, and he would not suffer any Romish superstitions to enter. At the risk of a considerable tumult he carried his point, the surpliced clergy wisely giving way and remaining outside.^b

One of the principal agitators among the clergy was a Scotchman who was accustomed to preach twice a day at St. Magnus', and who ministered the sacrament in a gown or cloak. On Palm Sunday he preached a violent sermon at All Hallows the Less in Thames Street, where the incumbent, who had complied with the injunctions, sat listening to him with a sarcastic smile quite visible upon his features. The result was, that, after the sermon, some of the congregation addressed a remonstrance to the incumbent, which began in argument and ended in a scuffle between the opposite sides. The general excitement on these subjects was increased by a host of pamphlets which were scattered freely about the streets, and many of which were, according to the ideas of that age, nothing less than seditious libels. Between Easter and Whitsuntide, however, the Scotchman seems to have been converted—by what influences we are not told. On Whit Monday he found his conscience allowed him to do duty in a surplice at St. Margaret Pattens in Rood Lane. But, unfortunately for him, his audience liked his former preaching better than his later practice, and his appearance caused a regular riot inside the church, especially among the women, who threw stones at him, and pulled him out of the pulpit, tearing his surplice and scratching his face in their violence.^a

^a pp. 128, 133.

Two others of the London clergy, who were prominent in their opposition to the injunctions, were Philpot and Gough, each holding a plurality of cures, some of which appear to have been within the diocese of Winchester. Robert Horne, Bishop of that see, summoned them to a conference at Winchester, in which the subject was to be discussed for one-and-twenty days. As they passed over London Bridge into Southwark, they were accompanied by two or three hundred women, laden with bags and bottles “to banquet at their departing.” Whether this was an open-air entertainment the author does not say; but it was not the only form in which the crowd displayed their enthusiastic liberality. Presents of gold, silver, spice, sugar, and other things were made in abundance, and the travellers were everywhere exhorted to stand fast in the doctrine they had taught, touching the important subject of caps and surplices.^a

On the other hand, the Bishop of London himself, on coming to St. Margaret's church in Old Fish Street, was hooted at by the congregation, and especially by the women, because he wore the cornered cap belonging to his dignity. A cry of "Ware horns!" rose up, with other opprobrious language. The episcopal dignity had certainly fallen into strange disrepute, at all events in the city of London, when such a scene was possible. Nor was it easy to inflict appropriate punishment on the offenders. One woman indeed was taken on the following Saturday and placed upon two ladders "like a cucking stool," for the space of a whole hour; but, like Defoe in a later age, she only rejoiced in her punishment, and was encouraged by the spectators to glory in having been thought worthy to suffer persecution for the sake, as they declared, of righteousness and truth in protesting against superstition.^a

I leave the reader to examine for himself the notice of the original Puritans and Brownists, which completes the religious picture of the times,^b the minute accounts of the mortality from the plague,^c the description of the tournament at the marriage of Lord Ambrose Dudley,^d the meeting between the Queen and Leicester in 1566,^e the proclamation for the sale of the houses on the site destined for Sir Thomas Gresham's Exchange,^f and other matters of the like character; all of which possess much interest for the historical reader.

The reader has now before him everything that is of a distinctly historical character in the Lambeth Volume No. 306. That volume, however, also contains, as will be seen by the catalogue, a quantity of poetry, medical receipts, and scraps of various kinds, which do not, generally speaking, greatly repay perusal. I have, however, printed two little scraps at the end of this preface (Note A) which are not altogether uninteresting as curiosities.

The "Brief Notes," which form the second portion of this volume, are derived from a MS. (No. 448 in the Lambeth Library) which seems to have been penned within the monastery of Ely. It is a small quarto volume, containing 153 leaves, of which the greater part are parchment; but the last 37 and some in the middle are of paper. The earlier portion is the history of the monastery and of the bishops of Ely printed by Wharton in his Anglia Sacra, pp. 593—674. It extends from the days of the founder, Queen Etheldreda the Virgin, to the episcopate of Morton, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury and Cardinal, who succeeded to this see in the year 1478. This history is written on parchment as far as folio 77, and is continued for 22 pages further upon paper, the continuation being evidently a portion of the draft from which the whole was copied. This is shown by the fact that on the top line of folio 78 the first four words of a sentence are cancelled, being contained in the last line of the vellum leaf immediately preceding. The handwriting on the paper leaves is different from that of the portion written on vellum, but both are evidently of the same period, the close of the fifteenth century. The work, however, is continued by a sixteenth-century pen, from the episcopate of Alcock, Morton's successor, to that of Thirlby.

After this follow 25 leaves of parchment, filled with matter relating to the statutes and benefactors of the monastery, all in fifteenth-century handwriting, and containing much that is of considerable interest to the student of monastic usages. In the middle of this portion, however, are a few leaves which had been left blank, and which have been filled up by a later scribe with the genealogy of Robert Steward, the last Prior and first Dean of Ely, who died in 1557. This genealogy has also been printed by Wharton, pp. 686-8.

From folio 117 to the end is again paper, filled with writing of the fifteenth century; and it is from this portion alone that our extracts are taken. The contents, however, are very miscellaneous, being partly jottings and extracts from various sources, in which the only point of real interest is an account of the great fire at Bury St. Edmund's in 1140, and partly an exceedingly rough and careless, but still contemporary, register of current events. The entries here have not even been written in consecutively as the events occurred, but later occurrences precede earlier ones, although the date of the year is invariably given at the head of the paragraph. Evidently this part of the volume was a mere memorandum book, filled up irregularly at intervals, and intended merely to aid in the compilation of some more polished chronicle. Even the dates given prior to the year 1450 are very inaccurate; indeed a good number of the occurrences in that year are referred to the year 1449. But in point of fact these brief notes are, with one exception, of little or no consequence before the year 1459, and most of the preceding entries are probably derived from some other source. An exception, however, ought certainly to be made as to the paragraph relating to the Parliament at Bury in 1446-7, and the suspected murder of the Duke of Gloucester. The strong impression produced by that event is shown by all the historical evidences of the period; and it is all the more interesting to read what appears to have been a first impression produced when the news was fresh, in a monastery not thirty miles distant from the scene of its occurrence.

This paragraph moreover contains circumstantial information not found elsewhere. Whatever the facts may have been, Suffolk professed to apprehend danger to the King from the machinations of his uncle, and caused him to be protected by a very strong guard (about 60,000 men and villeins, says our MS.) at every town in which he stopped on his way to the Parliament. The writer however altogether discredits the danger, and tells us that Duke Humphrey came up from Wales in obedience to the King's command without a thought or suspicion of evil in his mind, merely hoping to obtain the King's favour for Dame Eleanor his wife, who had been for some time imprisoned. The writer's incredulity as to the conspiracy was doubtless shared by the majority of the people, as it is by most of the writers of this period; but it seems strange that, such being the case, the strong bodyguard is not even noticed by any other writer.

Great confusion exists in some parts of the narrative; in one place the writer actually speaks of Pomfret Castle being near Southwark (p. 154). The battle of Northampton is dated 1459, instead of 1460 (p. 153), and in the account of the circumstances which led to it the name of Northampton seems to be introduced prematurely where Ludlow was the place that is really referred to.^a These and a variety of other errors show the carelessness with which these notes of occurrences were drawn up.^b

^a "Anno Domini MCCCC.lix^o (1460), et anno Regis Henrici vj^{ti}xxvij^o, mense Julii venerunt comes de Warwyk, comes de March, et comes de Salisbery; quia cum prius venissent ad Northampton (Ludlow), et audito quod Rex erat presens clam fugierunt ad mare," &c.

^b Carelessness, however, is contagious, and I take this opportunity both to confess and to explain a curious slip of my own occasioned by the slovenly character of the MS. At page 159, in the account of the sieges in Northumberland in 1162, occurs the sentence:—"At the seege of Hem sunt comes de Wyeeter, comes de Arndel, dominus de Ogyll, et dominus de Muntegew cum x. Ml." I could not but suppose when I transcribed the MS. that "Hem" was a place, though I was unacquainted with it. I find, however, the word should have been spelt with a small h, "hem" being here a personal pronoun referring to the Duke of Somerset and others,

But, while inaccuracies such as these might seem to detract from the value of the record, its importance as an original source of information on many points cannot be overlooked. The news of the battle of Hedgley Moor has evidently been taken down when it was quite fresh, prefaced by the words, "These tidings hath my lord of Lincoln, and the same be come to Stamford" (p. 156). Again, the exploits of Earl Douglas in 1462, of which no other account has been preserved to us, are introduced in like manner, with the words, "These been the tidings sent out of Scotland" (p. 159). It may be added that the sieges in Northumberland in 1462 (p. 159) are described in the present tense, as if they were still going on, and the account of them is concluded by the statement, "Rex tenet Natale suum apud Dorham" (the King is keeping his Christmas at Durham). Even the errors as to matters of fact in some cases are such as could only have been made at the time; as, for example, in the list of those killed at Towton (p. 160), which includes not only Queen Margaret and her son, but at least seven noblemen besides,^a who certainly survived that day, and some of whom lived after it for twenty years or more.

who were keeping Bamborough Castle for Henry VI., as mentioned in the preceding sentence! Of all writings in the world illiterate writings are certainly the easiest to misinterpret.

^a The Dukes of Exeter and Somerset, the Earls of Cumberland and Shrewsbury, Lords Scales, Willoughby, and Roos. "Dominus Henricus de Bokyngham" is probably an eighth; for I imagine the person intended was the Duke of Buckingham, afterwards beheaded by Richard III., whose succession to the title was not yet acknowledged, his grandfather from whom he inherited it having been slain at Northampton in the preceding year. In the list of knights slain also we meet with "Dominus R. de Percy," probably Sir Ralph Percy who was killed three years later at Hedgley Moor, and Sir Ralph Gray who also survived for three years and was beheaded for treason in 1464. The error in the case of Sir Ralph Gray was however discovered and the name is accordingly erased. At page 161 again we have another list of those slain in this battle, including, as the former one did, the Earl of Devonshire. Yet the Earl of Devonshire is stated on the same page to have been beheaded after the battle, which of course is more accurate.

Inaccuracies of this kind are instructive, for in the present case they testify to the exaggerated impression produced by a great victory. Even what may be called the official report, written just after the battle by King Edward himself, wrongly enumerated among the slain Lords Willoughby and Scales, while it spoke with rather less certainty of the death of Northumberland, who certainly was one of them; and mentioned truly that King Henry and Margaret with their son, the Dukes of Somerset and Exeter, and Lord Roos, had escaped to Scotland.^a But the report which first reached the monastery of Ely confounded those who had fled with those who had fallen in battle, and added two more noblemen besides to the appalling list. Almost anything must have seemed credible as to the fatal results of a conflict after which it was positively stated that 28,000 corpses had been numbered upon the field by heralds.^b

There can be no doubt, therefore, whether its statements be accurate or the reverse, that this MS. contains the first intelligence of a number of occurrences as they were reported in the monastery of Ely in the beginning of Edward the Fourth's reign. And after the fullest allowance made for error these brief notes certainly make a considerable addition to what was already known of that obscure and turbulent period. Here we have not only the account of several actions fought and sieges laid, but of Lancastrian conspiracies detected, and of the foreign alliances by which it was believed the defeated party would be enabled to invade England at several points at once (p. 158). The account of the discovery of the conspiracy of the Earl of Oxford in 1461-2 (pp. 162-3) is also new and not altogether unimportant. Nor must we pass by in silence the long

^a See Paston Letters (new edition), ii. 5.

^b Paston Letters, ii. 6. Here in this Ely MS. we are told with beautiful precision that the number of the slain "was reckoned at 35,091, as it was reported" (per estimationem xxxvml.iiiij^{xx} et xj. ut dicebatur), and a little lower that it was 33,000 and more (quasi xxxiiij milia et plures).

catalogue at p. 157 of the noblemen and knights who accompanied King Edward to the borders of Scotland in December 1462. But on these things, as on the minute fragments of information in the Short English Chronicle, it is quite impossible to enlarge in a Preface like this, and we must be content with having thus briefly indicated the sort of material which this MS. contains.

Before finally taking leave of it, however, it may be interesting to give here an extract from the earlier part of the volume relative to an earthquake in the year 1488. On the back of folio 116 occurs the following note:—

Anno Domini M^oCCCC^oLXXX^{mo}viiij^o, in festo Sancti Thome Martiris erat terre motus magnus per quarternium unius hore ante horam duodecimam in nocte, ex quo plures audientes et sensientes erant exterriti; qui duravit per spacium unius^a Ave Maria.

The third source from which the contents of this volume are derived is the MS. numbered 5 in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms. It is a great parchment folio still preserved in the old wooden covers, and, as mentioned in the catalogue, “on the right hand one is a curious horn tablet, covering a piece of parchment, with the titles of the contents written by the original scribe.” Nothing seems to be known of the history of this volume beyond the fact that it once belonged to Fox the Martyrologist and afterwards became the property of Lord William Howard of Naworth—a collector whose historical and religious views being totally opposed to those of his predecessor, he has left a note in one place accusing Fox, but it must be said most untruly, of interpolating a passage in the text concerning the death of King John.

The contents are, first, what is called a Scala Mundi, or tabular chronology of universal history, with dates extending down to the year 1619, the events however being only filled in to the year 1469.

^a The word dimidii here followed, but is erased.

Second, a double history of Popes and Emperors on opposite pages, the former carried down as far as the year 1334, and the latter to the period of the Guelph and Ghibelline factions. And third, a "Compilacio de Gestis Britonum et Anglorum," continued to the year 1471. It is the concluding portion of this last work that alone has any value for the historian, because there is no doubt that for the reign of Edward IV. at least it is a strictly contemporary record. As such it has been already cited by Mr. Halliwell Phillips, who quoted some extracts from it in his Appendix to Warkworth's Chronicle—the first work ever published by this Society.^a But the whole narrative for the reign of Edward IV. is full of interest, and, as it is difficult to say at what point the work begins to be an original composition, I have given a complete transcript from the beginning of Henry VI.'s reign.

Whoever the compiler was, he certainly lived in the days of Henry VI. and Edward IV. Yet for the most part, if not the whole, of Henry VI.'s reign his narrative is of very little value. So slender is his record of events that the first battle of St. Alban's is altogether omitted, though there is a retrospective allusion to it in connection with the pacification of 1457-8 (p. 168). The disgrace of Bishop Pecock in the same year is related with a good deal of the usual theological bitterness (pp. 167-8). But there is really nothing in this Chronicle that cannot be found elsewhere before the year 1460, and little even in that year, though the circumstances connected with the battle of Northampton and the Duke of York's claim to the crown are recorded somewhat more fully than previous events. An abstract of the Duke of York's claim in parliament is quoted in English (p. 170), and it is clear the writer has much sympathy both with him and with his son.

Just after Edward the Fourth was proclaimed King in London, we find that his title was set forth in a sermon at Paul's Cross by ^a Warkworth's Chronicle, pp. 39, 40, 43, 44, 45, 46.

George Nevill, Bishop of Exeter, the Earl of Warwick's brother. When the sermon was finished, King Edward rode through the streets to Westminster in a great procession of lords spiritual and temporal, and sat down in the royal seat (sedes regalis) in Westminster Hall, as if taking formal possession of the throne.^a This intelligence is very remarkable, and suggests at once the question how far Richard III. intended to use the case as a precedent when Dr. Shaw preached in behalf of his title from the same pulpit. That Richard hoped to be made King (or make himself so) by acclamation like his brother is the belief that has always been accepted; and it is remarkable that, though Dr. Shaw's sermon was a failure, and Richard took no steps that day to secure possession of the throne, he actually did on the day of his accession, which was only four days later, take his seat in the marble chair in Westminster Hall, the sedes regalis mentioned by our chronicler.

This sedes regalis, or marble chair of royalty, was apparently the King's Bench, from which the court derives its name;^b and it is interesting to find, a little further on (p. 175), that it was not a mere antiquated tradition in Edward the Fourth's days that kings might administer justice in person; for we are told that Edward himself in 1462, sitting in the King's Bench (in banco suo regali) at Westminster, heard a particular cause tried before him, his Chancellor and Justices assisting him with their advice.

^b I had written this without referring to any other work upon the subject, but I find the same opinion put forward in a note in Smith's Antiquities of Westminster, p. 258; and it appears from a reference there to Bailey's Antiquities of London and Westminster, p. 240 (ed. 1734), that this marble chair was believed to be still in existence at the beginning of the last century, though it was then hidden from view, being built over by the two Courts of Chancery and the King's Bench. What has become of it? My friend Mr. Henry Brewer, who has always taken much interest in the architectural history of Westminster Hall, believes that Bailey was labouring under a mistake, and that the chair had been destroyed before his time. See note B at the end of this Preface.

Of the military and naval movements at the commencement of Edward IV.'s reign this is perhaps the clearest contemporary account that we possess; Worcester's narrative, though rather more minute, being defective in some places, and particularly in the year 1463, where a leaf of the original MS. is lost.^a From what we read in the present Chronicle that does not appear to have been a very eventful year; but the tone of the writer's comments upon it is noteworthy. He takes note of the assembly and prorogation of parliament, and observes that he is not aware that it had redressed any evils or initiated any reforms during its seven weeks' sitting. He makes no mention of what was apparently the only business transacted—the vote of 37,000*l.* for the defence of the kingdom.^b But this was a matter that only affected the laity, and evidently the writer was a churchman. The taxation of the laity was a mere trifle to what was extorted at the same time from the clergy, and on this subject our author writes feelingly. The Convocation of Canterbury granted the king the sum of one mark, or thirteen shillings and four pence, on every ten marks clerical income; “at which,” he says, “many were aggrieved and complained, both because they were poor and because moneys so extorted from the clergy rarely or never lead to any good result, but rather to the confusion and disgrace of those who use them. For after the feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary King Edward mustered a great army and prepared to subdue his adversaries by land and sea. I know not, however, what good he did in that expedition. And the Earl of Worcester with his ship and sailors, lurking as it were by the shores and havens of the sea and consuming their provisions, returned empty without doing anything. O unhappy result, shame and confusion!”

The King's necessities about the same time, or shortly afterwards,

^a W. Yr. 497.

^b Rolls of Parliament, v. 497.

led him to enhance the value of the coinage and seize upon the revenues of the two Colleges founded by his predecessor at Cambridge and Eton, the latter of which he had some thought of suppressing altogether by the aid of a papal bull. Happily he was persuaded to abandon this intention; but the endowments of both Colleges were reduced and a large portion went to meet the King's requirements.^a

It is evident that the cause of Henry VI. was at this time by no means desperate, and might even have triumphed without the unexpected aid which it afterwards received from the Earl of Warwick. For the civil war was by no means so intermittent and spasmodic an affair as the meagre contemporary notices might well lead us to imagine. Through the early part of King Edward's reign it was quite continuous, and we now learn for the first time that in 1464 the Lancastrians obtained possession of the castles of Norham and Skipton in Craven. The news took Edward by surprise while he was feasting with his lords in London, and presently he proceeded to the North to resist the enemy. But his going seemed to produce very little result, and after a good deal of time had been wasted Edward's Chancellor, George Nevill Bishop of Exeter, the brother of Warwick and Lord Montague, took his journey also to the North for the relief of the latter lord, who had to sustain the brunt of the conflict. But on the 2nd May, we are told, a decisive battle was fought by Montague, in which the Lancastrian party were defeated, the Duke of Somerset and others put to flight, and Sir Ralph Percy slain.^b

So the facts are related, but I am bound to state that the narrative in this place does not seem quite so accurate as elsewhere. From the dates of King Edward's privy seals it appears that he remained in or near London till the end of April. He was at the Tower on the 26th of that month, and this must have been about the time when the news came of the capture of Norham and Skipton Castles. On the 29th April we find him at St. Alban's, and by the 2nd May he had reached Northampton, so that by that date, when the decisive battle above alluded to is said to have been fought, the King certainly had not lost much time. He contrived to waste a little, as we know quite well, the day before, when he secretly stole away from Stony Stratford and got married to Elizabeth Woodville at Grafton. But as he rejoined his company the same day, and no one knew of the affair for some months after, it cannot be said that even this was a great delay, so far. It was after the decisive battle had been fought, and no doubt because it had been fought and won, that Edward manifestly slackened speed on his progress northwards. He stayed at Leicester from the 8th to the 13th May, was at Nottingham on the 15th, had reached Pomfret by the 14th June, and Doncaster by the 23rd, and seems to have advanced no further. In July we find him again at Leicester, and in August we trace his movements southwards by Stamford and Fotheringay to Woodstock, which he reached on the 24th. The only material waste of time, therefore, that we can detect on the King's part, was after the danger was practically at an end.

Again, the decisive battle in which Sir Ralph Percy was slain was, it is well known, the battle of Hedgley Moor; but it appears by the concurrent evidence of Gregory's Chronicle and the Rolls of Parliament to have been fought, not on the 2nd May, but on St. Mark's Day, the 25th April,^a so here seems to be another inaccuracy. These however are exceptions. The account of the executions after the battle of Hexham corresponds with that in Gregory's Chronicle (Coll. of a London Citizen, 224-6), and must have been derived from a common source, but the Latin text seems to be the more accurate.

^a Coll. of a Lond. Citizen, 224. Rolls of Parl. v. 511.

From the year 1464 to the close of this Chronicle in 1471 there is comparatively little recorded that is not to be found elsewhere; but the narrative, slender as it is, ought certainly not to be overlooked by any one who proposes to study the history of the period from original sources.

I am favoured with the following observations by Mr. Henry Brewer:—

In Smith's Westminster, p. 258, is inserted a letter from one John Cranch quoting the following passage from Bailey (the passage which, I suppose, you refer to in your letter to me):

“At the upper end of Westminster Hall is a marble ‘stone’ (sic) [perhaps table or bench], of nineteen feet in length and three feet in breadth, and a marble chair, where the Kings of England formerly sat at their coronation dinners; and at other solemn times the Lord Chancellors, but now not to be seen, being built over by the Courts of King's Bench and Chancery” (p. 240). “It is to be wished that when the purposed alterations of these places shall commence, every lover of our monarchial antiquities will interest himself in the preservation of these venerable relics, since the same barbarous insensibility that buried them alive will scruple as little to profane or destroy them when disclosed.

“JOHN CRANCH.”

Appended to this letter is the following most valuable note:

“When this communication was delivered in writing by Mr. Smith to Mr. Groves, Clerk of the Works of the Old Palace of Westminster, that gentleman gave immediate orders for an investigation of the fact. But it appears that the search was made close to the southern wall, and that he was completely disappointed. It is highly probable that the chair and table [he has here, I fancy, fallen into the mistake of confusing the architectural expression a 'basement table,' which really means a stone bench attached to a wall, with the ordinary idea of a table!] were placed at a distance from the wall so that had the examination taken place at about 15 feet from the wall these relics might have been discovered. Is not the title of Court of 'King's Bench' derived from this identical marble bench? because it is well known that our early kings sat in parliament in 'Westminster Hall.'

This is very interesting, but to my mind it proves most distinctly that the throne and bench had been destroyed before Mr. Groves made his search. I think that the two facts taken together—1. That this feature is sometimes called a "bench," and sometimes a "table," and 2ndly, that we always find these thrones and benches in combination attached to the wall—go a very long way to prove that "the marble seat and bench in Westminster Hall were attached to the south wall of the building." That they must have been destroyed before Mr. Groves made his search is, I think, certain, because had they existed they must have been discovered when the interior of the hall was restored by Sir Robert Smirke for George the Fourth's coronation; but Brayley, who relates most exactly the discoveries in St. Stephen's Chapel, says nothing whatever about them, and I have no doubt, myself, that they were destroyed in 1680, when a doorway was cut through the south end of the Hall; in fact, if, as I suppose, the throne was attached to the wall, this doorway would have exactly occupied its place.

A SHORT ENGLISH CHRONICLE,

through the false counsell of the Spencers, the fader and the sonne, the whiche were the robbers of this londe. And in the same yere fell a grete derthe in this londe, for a quarter of whete ^{Quarterium frumenti,} was solde for xl s., the yere of our Lord m^ccccxxj^e. After that, ^{xl s.} by false counsaill off the Spencers, Kyng Edward exiled Quene Isabelle his wiffe, and Sir Edwarde his eldest sonne, oute of Englonde, and went in to Fraunce; and after that thei came a yene in to Englonde with a grete strenthe of people. And Sir John Hennawde, the erles brother of Hennawde, come with hem with all the power that he myght to strenthe hem in right; and thei lounded fast by Herwiche in Southefolke; tho all the contre fell to them and held with hem to distroye the venym of London. And anone thei toke the kynges counsellours, that is to sey, the fader and sonne called the Spencers and Maister Robert Baldok, a fals peled clerke, that was chaunceler of Englonde. And Maister Water Stapilton, that was þo Bysshoppe of Exceter and Tresourere of Englonde, and þe Erle of Arondell, and many oþer that was consent to them, thei were done to dethe in sondrye wise, some hanged and quartered and some beheded. And so by counsaill of all the lordis of Englonde, Kyng Edwarde of Carnarvan was deposed and put downe of his kyngdome, in the yere of our Lorde m^ccccxxvj^e, in the xix yere of his regne.

And anone after that was Kyng Edward the Thred of Wyndsore crowned at Westmester the first day of Feverell, and in the xv yere ^{Edwardus iij [clius]} of his age; and this Kyng Edwarde was called the floure of knyghte- ^{post Conquestum.} hode of all Cristendome. And in the same yere, through counsell of Quene Isabell and Sir Roger Mortymer, was Sir Edward of Carnarvan broȝt from the castell of Kyllingworthe to Berkle, and fro thens to the castell of Corffe; and ther he was mortherd betwene ij feþer beddis, and an hote breynge spitt put in his fondement, and so brent his bodi with in; and that was on Seint Matheus daye in Septembre; and tho was he enterred at Glowceter. And in the nexte yere folowyng Kyng Edward spowsed Quene Phelippe, the Erles daughter of Hennawde, at Yorke, upon the feste of Convercion of Seint Poule, the yere of our Lord m^ccccxxvij^e. And while Kynge Edward was of tender age he suffred many prejudice done in Engelonde, for Quene Isabell and Sir Roger Mortymer ruled all Engelond as hem liked. But aftir King Edward redressed hit full wele bi his discrete counsell, and chastesid the traytors and the rebellis of Englund full wele and manfully. And in the third yere of his regne, Edmond of Wodstok, that was the kynges uncle, was be hedid at Wynchestre wrongfully, and all throwe Sir Roger Mortymer that was late made Erle of Marche; and sone aftir, for his grete covetise and falskede that he did to al the realme, he was drawen and hanged at Tiborne upon Seint Andres evyn, the v yere of his regne. After that, he went in to Scotlond, and conquered a yene all þe fewte and homage that the Scottes owid to the crowne off Englund. And in the vj yere of his regne was the batayle at Hayldon Hill besides Berwyk; and at that batayle was slayne xxxviii and xij of Scottes and nombred by herawdes, and of Englissh men but xxvij persones, thanked be God, for this was a grete victorie. And this was upon Seint Margaretes even, the yere of our Lorde M^ccccxxxij. And after that he conquered all Scotlond, and made the Kynge of Scottes his liege man, to do him fewte and homage as he ought of right. And in the xiiij yere of his regne Kynge Edwarde made him redy with a grete nombre of peple for to go in to Fraunce, for to chalange the crowne be right tytell and erytaunce by his moder Quene Isabell. And Kynge Karoll died with oute issewe, and Phelipp Valeys, his emys sonne, occupyed the crowne ayenes right. And so Kynge Edward and his oste were shipped taward Fraunce, and thought to lande in Flaundes ther as Phelippe of Valoys was with grete navye of dyverse nacions. And so Kynge Edward and his oste aryved with his navy in the haven of Skluse. And the viij day off Julii ther was a grete bataylle, and ther was slayne of the Frensshe partye xxxiii men, and oure kynge toke þer many grete shippis and cogges and hulkes. And so that tyme Kynge Edwarde hade a gracious victory, in the yere of our Lord M^ccccxl. And in the xvij yere of his regne the kynge made his eldest sonne Edward, Prince of Walys, Duke of Cornwayle and Erle of Chester. And in the xxj yere of his regne wa

the bataylle of Cressey, the xxvj daye of August. Ther were slayne and take many grete lordis of Fraunce, and the Frensshe kynge was put to flight, the yere of our Lorde M^lCCCxlviij^{ti}. And in the therd day of Septembre nexte folowing Kyng Edward laide sege to Calys, the whiche contened unto the iij daye of August, the nexte yere after, and than hit was yelden up for evir, bothe towne and castell, the yere M^l.iijC.xlvij^{ti}. And in the same yere duringe the sege was the Kyng of Scottes sore werryng in Englund, and robbed and revid the contre aboute Derham; and so ther was taken Kyng David of Scotlonde, the Erle Mounthyf, Sir William Douglas, and many oþer, the whiche were brought to the Toure of London; and than was the Kyng of Scotlonde taxed at an C.M^l. marke to be paid in x yere daye. And in the nexte yere after was the grete pestilence at London, from Michelmas to Lammas. And in the xxv yere of his regne ther was a grete bataill on the see with the Spaynardes upon the coste of Wynchilsey, and ther were taken xxiiij^{ti} grete shippis off Spayne. And in the xxvij yere of his regne was a corde made be twene Kyng Edward and the Frensshe kynge, so that he shulde have Normandy, Gascoyne, and Gyane in pees. And anone after died Phelippe of Valeys. Tho was his sonne John made Kyng of Fraunce, and he did myche harme in Gascoyne, and distroyed all the contre. Tho went Prince Edward to Burdeux for to kepe the contrey. After the one and therty yere of his regne was the bataylle of Peyters, the xx day of Septembre; and ther was taken Kyng John of Fraunce and Phelipp his sonne, and many oþer lordis, the whiche Prince Edward brought in to Englund to Kyng Edward his fader; the whiche Kyng John was taxed at iij melyons of scutis, that is to sey, VC.M^l.li. of mony. And in the xxxiiij yere of his regne Syr John off Gawnte, Erle of Rychemond, that was Kyng Edwardes therde sonne, spoused Dame Blanche, Duke Henryes daughter of Lancastre, by dispensacion of the Pope, the xiiij day of Julij, and than was made pees be twene Englund and Fraunce. And the nexte yere after was the grete wynde upon Seynt Maurys daye in June, A^o M^l.CCcxli. Also the same yere be for the grete wynde was þe secunde pestilence, in the whiche died the noble man and myghty Harry, Duke of Lancaster. And than was Sir John of Gaunte, Erle of Rychemond, made Duke of Lancaster, for he hade spoused Duke Henry daughter. And in the same yere Prynce Edward spoused the Countes of Kentt; also in þe same yere Sir Lionell, Kyng Edwardes sonne, was made Duke of Clarence, and Sir Edmond of Langley was made Duke of Yorke, and Sir Thomas Wodstok was made Duke of Glowcester. Alle thes v lordes were Kyng Edwardis sonnes. And in the xxxix yere of his regne came iij kynges in to this londe for to speke with Kyng Edward, that is to sey, the kyng of Siprys, the kyng of Fraunce, and the Kyng of Scotlond; and in the same yere died Kyng John off Fraunce, in Engelonde, at Savoye, in þe Dukis place of Langastre. And in the xlj yere of his regne was Richard, Prince Edwardes sonne, born at Burduex; and in the xliij yere of Kyng Edwardes dyed that noble Quene Philippe of Englund, and lithe at Westmester enterred, the yere of oure Lord M^oCCCL^o.lxix. And in the same yere was a grete derthe in Englund, a bussell of whete was worthe xl d. Also the xlvij yere of his regne the Duke of Lancaster spoused the kynges daughter of Spayne, and the Duke of Yorke spoused that oþer daughter. And in the l. yere of his regne dyed the noble Preince Edwardes, the viij day of Jun, in the feste of the Trinite, and lieth at Caunterbury. And in the nexte yere folowyng died the noble conquerour Kyng Edwardes the iij^e, of Wyndsore, flour of knyghthode, at Shene the xxj daye of June, and lieth worthely enterred at Westmester, in the yere of our Lorde M^oCCCLxxvj^e.

HISTORICAL MEMORANDA

IN EARLY HANDWRITINGS,

FROM THE SAME MS.

The first of these articles is in a fifteenth century hand. The handwriting of all the others is a little later. Nos. V. VI. and VII. are in a handwriting of the time of Henry VIII. being that of the annotator and corrector of the preceding Chronicle. Nos. II. and III. are apparently contemporary with the events related, and No. IV. may possibly be so too. No. VII. consists of entries written inside the cover at the beginning of the book.

VII. Notes of various Occurrences.

(Inside the Cover.)

The listes that Anthony Lord Scales and Anthony the Bastarde of Burgoyne justyd yn in Smythfelde, the tymbre and workman-shippe ther of cost ijc. marke, and was of six of the thryftiest carpenters of London bought and made. The length vj^{xx} taylours yardes and x foote, and iiij^{xx} of brede and x foote, dowbyll barred; the inner barres were mytche gretter then the utter, and be twixt bothe v foote. The justes began the Thirsday next after Corpus Christi Day, Anno Domini M^l.iiijc.lxvii, and in the vijth yere of Kyng Edwarde the iiijth, Thomas Howlegrave, skynner, then beyng mayre of London.

Below this is a catalogue of the mayors of London, giving generally the mere names with hardly any dates appended, beginning with William Taylour, Mercer, who was mayor in 1468-9. In one or two cases, however, important memoranda are added, which are here transcribed. Opposite the name "Johannes Stokton, mercer," is the marginal note "Barnet feelde." Three lines lower down occurs "John Tate with the powlyd hed." Under the name "Stevyn Jenyn" occurs the note "Henricus Septimus hic moriebatur;" and the succeeding entry is as follows:—

Thomas Bradbery, mercer. Capel successit pro residuo anni, quia Bradbery moriebatur.

It is remarkable that the death of Bradbury and succession of Capel are not mentioned by Fabyan. Three years later we have the following entry:—

[A.D. 1512-3].

Copynger, fysshmonger, moriebatur. Richard Haddon, secundo successit pro residuo anni.

And immediately after—

[A.D. 1513-4].

Wyllelmus Browne, mercer, moriebatur, et dominus Johannes Tate, miles, successit pro residuo anni.

Then passing over two mayoralties we come to the following entries, the first of which refers to the riot known as Evil May day:—

John Reste, grocer. In whose tyme on May Evyn at mydnyght [A.D. 1516-17] a grete nowmbre of mennys servauntes and prentis of London rose and spoyled the alyentes of Seynt Martens and of Blaw[n]chapylton; and also one Nutas,^a the kynges Frenche secretary, dwellyng in the parsonage at Saynt Andrew Undershafte, was put to flyte.

Exmewe, goldesmyth. Here cam in the legate^b from Rome, and [A.D. 1517-18]. the amerall^c and lordes of Fraunce.

A little lower we read:—

On the xvijth day of May, beyng Fryday, in the xijth yere of Kyng Henrye the viijth, —————^d Duke of Bokingham was behedyd at the Towre Hyll of London, be twene xj and xij afore none, and his hede and body forth with put in a cofyn and borne to the Austen Freers of London upon vj freers bakkys of the same place.

Next after Burges, draper, Mr. Mylborn, draper, Mundy, gold- [A.D. 1522-3]. smyth. The xvijth day of June, in this yere, the Kyng of Denmarke cam to Gre[n]wyche [1522].

Baldry, mercer. [A.D. 1523-4].

Syr Wylliam Bayly made knyght at Bryde wel by K. H. the [A.D. 1524-5.] viijth, the xixth day of Feveryere, beyng Sondag.

HISTORICAL MEMORANDA

IN THE HANDWRITING OF JOHN STOWE,

FROM THE SAME MS.

A proclamation made by Jacke Cade, Capytayn of y^e Rebelles in Kent. Anno M.iiijc.l.^a

Thes be the poyntys, causes, and mysheves of gaderynge and assemblinge of us the Kynges lege men of Kent, the iiij day of June, the yere of owr Lorde M.iiijc.l., the regne of our sovereyn Lorde the Kyng xxixth, the whiche we trust to All myghte God to remedy, withe the helpe and the grace of God and of owr soverayn lorde the kyng, and the pore commyns of Ingelond, and elles we shall dye there fore:

We, consyderyng that the kyng owre sovereyn lorde, by the insaciabie covetows malicious pompes, and fals and of nowght browght up certeyn persones, and dayly and nyghtly is about his hynesse, and dayly enforme hym that good is evyll and evyll is good, as Scripture witnesseth, Ve vobis qui dicitis bonum malum et malum bonum.

Item, they sey that owre sovereyn lorde is a bove his lawys to his pleysewr, and he may make it and breke it as hym lyst, withe owt eny distinction. The contrary is trew, and elles he shuld not have sworn to kepe it, the whyche we conceyvyd for the hyghest poynt of treson that eny soget may do to make his pryuce remn in perjury.

Item, they sey that the commons of Ingland wolde fyrst dystroye the kynges fryndes and aftarwarde hym selff, and then brynge the Duke of Yorke to be kyng, so that by ther fals menys and lyes they make hym to hate and to dystroy his frendys, and cherysythe his fals traytors. They calle themselves his frendys, and yf ther were no more reson in y^e worlde to knowe, he may knowe they be not his fryndes by theyr covytysnes.

Item, they sey that the kyng shuld lyve upon his commons, and that ther bodyes and goods ben the kynges; the contrary is trew, for then nedyd hym nevar perlement to syt to aske good of his comonys.

Item, they sey that it were gret reproffe to the kyng to take ageyne that he hath gebyn, so that they woll not sufere hym to have his owne good, ne loude, ne forfeiture, ne eny othar good but they aske it from hym, or ells they take bribes of othar to gett it for them.

Item, it ys to be remedied that the fals traytours wyll sofre no man to come to the kynges presens for no cawse with out bribes where none owght to be had, ne no bribery about the kynges persone, but that eny man myght have his comynge to hym to aske hym grace or jugement in such cas as the kyng may gyve.

Item, it is a hevy thyng that y^e good Duke of Gloucestar was apechid of treson by o fals traytour alone and so sone was morderyd and myght nevar come to his answer; but the fals traytur Pole was apechyd by all the holl comyns of Ingelond, the whiche nombre passyd a quest of xxiiijm., and myght not be suffryd to dye as y^e law wolde, but rather the sayd traytors of the affinite of Pole that was as fals as Fortager^a wolde that the kyng owre soverein lord shuld hold a batayll with in his owne realme to dystroy his pepyll and aftarward hym selffe.

Item, they say that whom y^e kyng woll shall be traytur and whom he woll shall be non, and that apperyth hederto, for yf eny of the traytours about hym wolde malygne ageynst eny person, hyghe or low, they wolde fynd fals menys that he shuld dy a traytor for to have his londes and his goods, but they wyll sufer the kyng nethar to pay his dettes with all, ner pay for his vytaylls ner be the rychar of one peny.

Item, the law servyth of nowght ellys in thes days but for to do wrong, for nothyng is sped almost but false maters by coulour of the law for mede, drede, and favor, and so no remedy is had in y^e cowrt of conscience in eny wyse.

Item, we sey owr sovereyn lord may understand that his fals counceill hath lost his law, his marchandyse is lost, his comon people is dystroyed, the see is lost, Fraunce is lost, the kyng hym selffe is so set that he may not pay for his mete nor drynke, and he owythe more then evar eny Kyng of Yngland owght, for dayly his traytours about hym wher eny thyng shuld come to hym by his lawes, anon they aske it from hym.

Item, they aske jentylmens goodys and londes in Kent and call them rysers and traytors and the kynges enimys, but they shall be fond the kynges trew legemen and best frendys with the helpe of Jesu, to whom we cry day and nyght with many M. mo that God of his grace and rytwynese shall take vengawnce and dystroy the fals govournors of his realme that hath brought us to nowght and in to myche sorowe and mysery.

Item, we wyll that all men knowe we blame not all the lordys, ne all tho that is about y^e kyngs person, ne all jentyllmen ne yowmen, ne all men of lawe, ne all bysshopes, ne all prestys, but all suche as may be fownde gylty by just and trew enquiry and by the law.

Item, we wyll that it be knone we wyll not robbe, ne reve, ne stelle, but that thes defautes be amendyd, and then we wyll go home; where fore we exort all the kyngs trew legemen to helpe us, to support us, for what so evar he be that wyll not that thes defawtes be amendyd, he is falsar than a Jewe or Sarasyn, and we shall with as good wyll lyve and dye upon hym as apon a Jewe or a Sarasyn, for who is a genst us in this casse hym wyll we marke, for he is not the trewe kyngys legeman.

Item, his trewe comyns desyre that he wyll avoyd from hym all the fals progeny and affynyte of the Dewke of Suffolke, the which ben openly knowne, and that they be p[u]nyshyd afftar law of lond, and to take about his noble person his trew blode of his ryall realme, that is to say, the hyghe and myghty prynce the Duke of Yorke, exilyd from owre sovereyne lords person by the noysyng of the fals traytore the Duke of Suffolke and his affinite. Also to take about his person the myghte prynce, the Duke of Exceter, the Duke of Bokyngham, the Duke of Norffolke, and his trewe erlys and barons of his lond, and he shall be the rychest kyng cristyn.

Item, the trewe comyns desyryth the punyshement upon the fals traytours, the which conterfetyd and imagenyd the dethe of the hyghe and myghtfull and excellent prynce the Duke of Glowcester, the which is to mych to reherse, the which duke was proclaymyd at Bery openly in the parlement a traytur, upon the whiche qwaryll we purpose us to lyve and dye that it is fals; also owre fadyr the cardenall, the good Duke of Exeter, the nobyll prynce the Duke of Warwyke, the wiche ware delyveryd by the same menys untrew; also the realme of Fraunce lost, the Duchy of Normandy, Gascon, and Gyan, and Anjoy demayn^a lost by the same traytours, and owr trew lordys, knyghtes, and squyres, and many good yemen lost and wer sold or they went, the whiche is gret pyte and gret losse to our sovereyn Lord and to all the realme.

Item, they desyre that all the extorsiners myght be leyd downe, that is to say, y^e grene wexe, the which is falsly used to the perpetwall hurt and distructyon of the trew comyns of Kent; also the extorsiners of the Kynges Benche, the which is ryght chargeable to all the comyns with owten provysyon of owr sovereyn lord and his trew cowncell.

Item, takyng of whet and othar greyns, beffe, motton and other vytayll, the which is inportable hurt to the comyns, with out pro-vysyon of owr sovereyn lord and his trew counsell, for his comyns may no lengar bere it.

Item, the statute upon the laborers and the gret extorsiners of Kent, that is to sey, Slegge, Crowmer, Isle, and Robert Est.

Item, where we meve and desyre that same^a trew justyce wyth certeyn trew lords and knyghts may be sent in to Kent for to enquere of all such traytors and brybors, and that the justice may do upon them trew judgement, what some evar they be; and that owr soverayn lorde dyrecte his lettars patentes to all the pepull ther universall opynly to be rede and cryed, that it is owre sovereyn lordys wyll and preyar of all his peple trewly to enquere of every mans govornawnce and of defawtes that reyneth, nother for love, favor, dred ne hate, and that dewe judgement shalbe forthe with and ther upon. The kynge to kepe in his owne handes theyr londes and goodys, and not gyve them aweye to no man but kepe them for his rychesse, or ells owre soverayn lorde to make his emarme^b in to Fraunce, or ells to pay his dettes; by this owr wrytynge ye may conceyve and se whethar we be the fryndes ethar enimys.

Item, to syt upon this enqwerye we refuse no juge except iij chefe juges, the which ben fals to beleve.

Item, they that be gylte wyll wrye ageynst this, but God wyll brynge them downe, and that they shall be ashamyd to speke ageynst reson, but they wyll go to the kynge and say that yf they be taken fro hym that we wyll put hym downe, for the traytours wyll lyve lenger, and yf we were disposed ageynst owr sovereyn lorde, as God it forbyd, what myght then the traytours helpe hym?

Item, thes defawtes thus dewly remedyd, and from hens forthe no man upon peyne of deth beyng abowt the kyngs person shall take no maner of brybe for eny byll of petysons or caws spedyng or lettynge, owr sovereyn lord shall regne and rewle with gret worshipec, and have love of God and of his peple, for he shall have so gret love of his people that he shall with Gods helpe conqwere where he wyll; and as for us, we shall be all weye redy to defend our cuntre from all nacions with our owne goods, and to go with the our sovereyne lorde where he wyll commaunde us, as his trew legemen.

The Cristenyng of Prince Arthure, sonne to Kynge
Henrie y^e VII. at Sent Swithins in Winchester.

Fyrst my Lady Cecily^a bare my lord prince to churche; my Lord Marques^b and my Lorde of Lyncoln ledde my Lady Cecily; my Lady Marques, and afttar Cheyne as chamberlȳn, bare the trayne of y^e mantyll; my Lady Anne y^e quens sister bare y^e crysom. The hole chapell met with my lord prynce in y^e qwens great chamber. My Lord Laware, my Lord Widvell,^c my Lord John of Arondell, and Mastar Awdley bare y^e clothe of astate. The torches unlight met hym at the steyre foote of y^e qwenes great chamber, and so went by fore hym unlyght to the chirche. Many ladyes and gentyll-women folowyd hym. Knyston, Geddyng, gentilmen usshers, and Piers Wrattton and John Amyas, yomen usshers, had y^e rowle of y^e conveyaunce of the torches. The sergcaunt of the pantry was redy with a ryche salt, and my Lord of Essyx bare y^e same salte by fore my lorde prince to the churche. The sergaint of the ewrey was redy with a payre of coverd basons and a fayre towell lyeng ther upon, and my Lord Straunge bare them to the churche. Syr Rychard Gyldford, Knyght Constable, and Mastar Troblefylde, had the keypyng of the churche dores with his meyne. Fowre gentyllmen and yowmen of the crowne had the keypyng of y^e barryers a bowt the fonte, for y^e comyng in of the preas. Ser Davy Owen, Master Poynes and iij othar knyghts and gentyllmen, had y^e keypyng and charge of the funte. Two gentyllmen usshers had y^e keypyng of y^e travers by the fonte where my lord prynce was dysparilyd, and afttar his cristynyng arrayed, and ther fyar tarteryn fastenyd with a lace of white silke, with a payre of whit gloves hangynge at y^e ende of y^e lace, but he shall have of the chaundler of y^e howsholde y^e corse girdill and y^e gloves, and on y^t otharsyde y^e chaundelar shall take for his fee all y^e garments and all y^e arraye with all y^e necessaries in y^e which y^e esquire was arrayd and clothid that day he enteryd into y^e courte for to take y^e ordre, togedre with y^e bedd in y^e whiche he laye first aftar y^e bathe, as well y^e clothe of golde called seleton as y^e othar necessaries towchyng y^e sayd bedd; and, this fully done, this wyse knyghts shall lede this esquire on horse bake unto y^e kyngs hall, at all tymes y^e mynstrells beyng before, makynge theyre mynstrellsye. Ther horse shall be arrayed in this wyse; he shall have a sadell coveryd with blake leder, y^e arsons of whit tree fowre sqware, and blake stiropes with gylde irons, and his sadell shall have no cropar but a paytryll of gilt patee before, hangynge uppon y^e brest of y^e horse, his bridle shall be blake lethar playne, with longe reynes in ye guyse of Spayne, and a crosse patent in y^e forhede. And ther shall be ordaynyd a yonge gentyll esquier for to ride before this esquire that is to be made knyght. And he shall be open hede, and shall bere y^e swere of y^e esquire y^e poynt downward, with sporris hangynge uppon y^e swerd, and y^e swerd shall have a white scabard and frett with y^e gerdle and scales, with whit ledar, with owt eny hernesse, and y^e yonge gentill esquire shall holde y^e swerde by the poynt. In this wyse they shall ride to y^e kyngs hall, all tymes y^e sayd governors beyng redye to y^e maystar as it is fitynge to be. And the forsayd noble and wyse knyghtes shall soberlye lede this esquire as they awen. And when y^e esquier commythe before y^e hall dore, y^e marshalls and usshers shall be redye afore hym in y^e moste honest wise that they can, saynge thus, "Come downe." And than he shall come downe. The marshall for his fee shall take y^e hors, or CC^s. This thyng so done, these wise knyghts shall lede y^e esquier in to y^e hall or in to y^e great chambre unto his table, and forthe with he shall be put at the begynnyng of y^e second table tyll that y^e kynge come, the sayd knyghtes abowght his person as one on every syde, and y^e yonge squiere swerde berar before hym, standyng with y^e swerde betwixt y^e ij govournours aforesayd. When y^e kyng comythe in to y^e hall and perseyvythe y^e esquer redy to take y^e ordre in dwe wyse he askythe for y^e swerde and y^e spurs. Y^e kynges chamberleyne shall take y^e swerde and y^e spurs owte of y^e handes of y^e yonge squiere, and shall take and shewe hym unto y^e kyng. The kyng shall receyve y^e ryght spure and betake it unto one of y^e most worthy that standyth abowte, commaundyng hym that he put it on y^e ryght hele of y^e esquier, and by y^e kyngs commaundement that lorde knelyng on y^e one kne shall take y^e esquier by y^e ryght legg and putte y^e foote upon his kne, and shall putte y^e spurr upon his helle, and he shall make a crosse upon y^e kne of y^e esquer and shall kysse it. Then shall an othar lorde putt upon that othar hele an othar spurr on y^e same wyse that y^e othar dyd; then y^e kyng of y^e mekenesse of his hieghe myght takyng y^e swerde in his hands shall ther with girde y^e squier. Than shall y^e esquier lyft upp his armys on hieghe, and y^e kyng shall putte his armys aboute y^e neke of y^e esquier, and lyftyng upp his right hand he shall smyte y^e esquier in y^e nekke sayng thus, "Be ye a good knyght," kyssyng hym. Afterwarde these noble and wyse knyghtes afore seyde this newe knyght shall lede in to y^e chapell as it is to fore wnto y^e hyghe awtar, and ther he shall unknyte hym and his swerde with prayers and devociions shall offer to God and to Holy Churche moste devoutly, beschyng God that thilke ordre moste worthy dewlic he may kepe unto his ende. Thes thyngs so done he shall take a sope in wyne. And in y^e goyng owte of y^e chapell y^e master coke shall be redy to do of his spwrrs, and shall take them to hym for his fee; and y^e reson is this, that in casse that y^e knyght do afftar eny thyng that be defame or reproffe unto y^e ordre of knyghthode, the master coke then with a gret knyfe, with whiche he dressethe his messes, shall smyt of his spurs frome his heles; and therefore in remembraunce of this thyng y^e spurs of a new knyght in ordre takyng shall be fee unto y^e mastar coke perteynyng dwely unto his office. Than shall this wyse knyghtes afore sayde lede this newe knyght in to y^e hall agayne, the whiche begynnge y^e table of knyghtes shall syt to mete; and y^e sayd noble and wyse knyghts shall sett abowte hym at y^e table, and y^e noble knyghts shall be servyd lyke as other bene; and as for that tyme he shall not ete nor drynke at y^e table but yf grete nede be, nor he shall not meve hym, nor loke hidre or thedar more than a wyfe newe weddyd; and evarmore one of his ij governowrs shall stand by hym with a kerchyffe, of y^e whiche, yf eny nede come, he may serve hym. And whan y^e kynge arrysythe from y^e table and goythe in to y^e chamber y^e knyght shall be ledd unto his chambre with greate multytwde of knyghtes, squires, and mynstrells yonge syngynge and dawnsynge in to y^e entre of his chambre. And there y^e knyghtes, esquiers, and mynstrills shall take thare leve, and y^e newe knyght shall go to eate, the dore shall be closyd, and he shall do of his arraye, whiche shall be gyven to y^e kyngs of armes; and also y^e sayd kynges and haurawds shall have thoffice of armes of every duke, erle, baron, and bachiler aftar thayr estates, and at y^e leste xx^s for theyr honors to shew them in y^e kyngs presence and in y^e sayd cowrte, y^e graye cope shall be unto y^e wayte or a noble for it. And aftar this mete this noble new knyght anon shall be arayed with a robe of blewe with streyght sleeves, and he shall have uppon y^e lefte shwldar a whit lace of sylke hangynge, and that lace he shall kepe in y^s wyse above his clothyng with owt forthe frome that daye hensforthe contynewally unto that tyme he gete sum maner of worshype by deservynge by wytnes of worthy knyghtes and squers of armes and herawdes dewlye affitarward reportyd; whiche reporte mouste enter in to y^e earys of y^e worthy prince whiche hathe made hym knyght, or of some odar, or ellys of some noble lady, for to take awaye y^e lace frome y^e shulder, sayenge thus: "Ryght dere lorde, I have herde so moche of yowr worshype and renowne that y^e have done in dyvers partes unto y^e grete worshype of knyghthode to yowr selffe and to hym that made yow knyght, that deserfe and ryght wyll that this lace be put and take awaye." But aftar dynar y^e worshipfull and worthy knyghts and esquiers shall come afore y^e sayd newe knyght, and hym shall lede to y^e kyngs presence, all tymes beyng before hym y^e sayd esquires, govornors. And when y^e new knyght comythe in to y^e presence of y^e kyng he shall knele before y^e kyng and shall say thus: "Moste drede and moste myghty prynce, of my lytyll powre of that that I may I thanke yow of all y^e worshypes, curtesies, godenesse, whiche ye have done unto me;" and this sayde he shall take leve of y^e kyng. And uppon that y^e govownowrs shall goo and take theyr leve of thayre maysters, saynge thus: "Worshypfull Sir, by y^e kyngs commaundement we have servyd yow, and that commaundement fullyllyd and parfwrmyd to owr powr, and what we have done in yowr service ayene yowr reverence we praye yow of yowr grace for to pardon us of owr neglygence. Fortharmore of y^e custome of y^e kyngs cowrt we aske and reqwere yow of robes and fees to the terme of owr lyfle covenable to y^e kyngs esquiers, felowes to y^e knyghtes of othar lands," &c.

[NOTE.—This article seems to have been transcribed by Stowe from the Cottonian MS. Nero C. ix. 168b., from which it has already been printed by Anstis in his Observations Introductory, Coll. No. 88, and by Nicolas in his History of the Order of the Bath, pp. 12-26. It is on the whole a very accurate transcript. The speech addressed to the esquire at p. 107 is, however, abbreviated, the passage standing in the original as follows:—

seyenge secretly to the squyer thus:—"Right dere brother, grete worshipe be this ordre un to yow: and Almyghty God geve yow the praysonge of all knyghthod. Lo, this is the ordre. Be ye stronge in the feith of Holy Cherehe, and wydows and maydones oppressed releve as right commanndith. Yeve ye to everych his owne with all thy mynde above all thyng. Love and drede God. And above all other erthly thynges love the Kyng thy soverayn lord, hym and his defende unto thy powere. And be fore all worldly thynges putte hym in worshipp and thynges that be not to be taken beware to begyme." In this wyse or better, &c. And when the knyght is thus counselled (see, as above, Stowe having corrected the word "knyght" here into "esquire.")]

The descrypcion of Troionovaunt.

Anno 1561, y^e 4 day of June, between 4 and 5 of y^e cloke [in] y^e afftar nonne, beyng Wedynsday and Corpus Cristi eve, y^e stepull of Powlles was fyeryd by lyghtnyng, y^e whiche lytenyng dyd take y^e stepulle, as it dyd seme to y^e beholders, y^e space of ij or iij yardes benethe y^e crosse and so byrnt round about in y^e same place that y^e toppe felle of with y^e crosse wnperryshed (or wn byrnt) and y^e crosse fell southe, and so the sphere byrnt downe ward lyke as a candil consumyng, to y^e stone werke and y^e bells, and so to y^e rouffe of y^e churche, and thorow y^e rouffes of y^e churche all fowre ways, east, west, northe, and sowthe. With in y^e qwiers or chawnsylls was brynt no thyng but only y^e communion table, and in y^e rest of y^e churche was brynt nothing but a sartayn tymber werke whiche stode at y^e northe-west pyllar of y^e stepull, which was fyeryd with y^e tymber that fell in to y^e churche owt of y^e steeple; whiche was a lamentable syghte and pytyfull remembraunce to all people that have y^e feare of God before theyr eyes, consydeyng it was y^e hous of owre Lord, erectyd to prays hym and pray to hym, y^e beawty of y^e syte of London, y^e beawty of y^e holle Reallme. A mynster of suche worthy, stronge, and costly buldyng, so large, so pleasant and delectable, it passyd all comparyson, not only of mynstyrs within thys realme but ells where as sure as travayll hathe taught ws in other realmes ethar Cristyn or hethyn. Wherefore feare we God that so sore hathe chatysyd us, and let ws well know that he whiche hathe not spayrd his owne hous wyll not spare owres, exsept we repent owr formor wykyd lyffe and serve hym in holynys and newenys of lyffe, with a parffyt faythe in God and parffyt charytye to owr neyghbour, y^e whyche our Lorde for his byttar passyng grawnt. Amen.

That same day at Gylford was brynte a carsy hangyng on y^e tayntars, which carse dyd contayne lx yards, and it was conswmyd to powdar and y^e tayntar not hurt; allso v mylle beynd Gylford a woman was byrnt with y^e same lyghtnyng. That day was many great harmes done by lyghtnyng in England, as at Shalliesebury the steple with parte of y^e churche was byrnt.

Anno 1561, the xxx and y^e last day of June in y^e afftarooone a cart ladyne with haye browght in to Sothewarke was set a fyre ———^a and elene brent, y^e hey, y^e carte, and y^e tylle horse to dethe, whiche was a thyng to be notyd, or rathar to be wonderyd at, that in suche a place, at that tyme of y^e day and in y^e syght of so many beholders, it shuld so be consumyd with owte helpe.

The confessyon of Master Ryehard Allington esquire, the xxij of Novembre, 1561, abowte viij of y^e
clocke at nyght, before Master Doctour Caldewalle, Master Doctor Good, Master Garthe, Master Jones, and Ser John of y^e Rolles, &c.

Maisters, seinge that I muste nedes die, whiche I assure yow I nevar thought wolde have cum to passe by this desease, consyderinge it is but y^e smalle pockes, I woulde therfore moste hertely desyre yow in y^e reverence of God and for Christes passions sake to suffer me to speake untill I be dede, that I may dyscharge my consiens, accuse myn adversary the devyll, and yelde my selfe holie to Almightye God, my Savior and Redemer, upon whose justice yf I loke and behold I am condemnde eternally, but one y^e othar syde yf I loke upon his merci, then I trust he wyll shewe unto me as he will do to y^e worst sorte of men, amonge whome I assure yow I accompt my selfe to be one, for nevar man hathe had more especiall tokenes of Godes singuler grace at offten and sundery tymes shewyd unto hym then I have had, and so letyll regardyd them as I have done. And good masters, for Christs passions sake give good care unto me, and pray continewally for me upon your knes, for I will tell yow of straunge thyngs, whiche I assure yow by that faithe I beare to God I speake not of vaine glorie or prayse of myselfe or any other cawse, but only thanke God for his greate mercys shewed dyverse and sondry wayes by me, and also to accuse my adversarie y^e devyll. Yt is so when I was a childe I was brought up, though I saye it, with a good father and mother whom ye knewe, who daylye used us children vertiouslie and kepte us for one hower or ij everie eveninge and mornige to prayers, and then when prayers wer don to owr bokes. Aftarwarde we wer wonte to go to playe into an orchard nere adjoynynge to my fathers howse, where as offtyn tymes for y^e space of iij yeres there apperyd to me in a thicke hedge a goodlye comfortable vision, I do well remember, from ten yers olde unto thirtene. Ther apperid, I say, to me y^e very Image of our Saviour Jesus Christ as he sufferyd his blisyd passion upon the crose; whiche Image apperyd to me very lyvely and that verie often so lovyngly and tenderly as evar any erthely man culde desyre and wishe, shewinge suche speciall tokens of his great marcie and goodnes to me as I thynke nevar mortall man coulde desyre or wyshe y^e lyke, whiche I did evermore kepe verie secret to my selfe for my greate comfote and consolacion. Goode maisters, for Christys passyons sake, geve good care unto me and pray, styll pray, pray, pray. Then longe aftar I cam to London, and at laste I was married, sythe whiche tyme I assure yow I have offended my Lorde God and Savyowr Christ so sore, many foldely comittinge of so abhominable userie, that I am a frayd I shalbe condempned eternally, and indede one greate occasion was because I nevar gave my selfe to prayer as I was wont to do, but spent my tyme to muche in wordlynes, for y^e whiche my conscience did oftymes accuse me. I will tell yow more anon. I beseche yow pray, pray, pray. And thus my consciens storryng with in my selfe brought me to mervelous trobles of mynde, so that nevar man was in suche case as I was of a longe tyme. And beinge in this greate troble, at y^e last y^e selfe same vision appered to me agayne even sence this laste terme, and put me in remembraunce agayne even of Gods speciall grace before shewed to me, and allso of many othar thynge, willynge me to leve of y^e worlde and y^e besynes therof, and not to trouble my selfe to muche there withe, sythen whiche tyme I assure yow I have gone abowte to leave of all my troubles of y^e law agayne, and so to have lyved more quietlie with that our Lord had sent me. Nowe, good mastars, pray styll for me and I wyll shew yow verie straunge thyngs. The second nyght aftar I felle secke, beinge in perfecte memorie lyenge in my bed brode a wake, and, as I thought, all my folkes beinge a slepe here in my chamber, ther apperid unto me suche strange thyngs and ferefull which greatly amased and put me in wonderfull feere. I can not tell what I shall tearme theme or call them, and as I doe remember they were lyke puppets, they came up and downe my chamber, and at laste, beinge marvelous sore afrayde, they came unto me rounde aboute my chamber, my bedde, and apon my bedd pulled and tossed me, stearde me, and tarde me, and so vexed me as I was never in all my lyffe so soore troubled and vexed, shewynge suche terrable and fearefull sytes, so that I was all most broughte to utter desperacyon, so farforthe that I coulde not tell what to doe; yet at the laste remembrynge with my selfe and callynge to my remembrance the goodlye graces that my Lorde and Savior Jesus Christe at dyverse and soundry tymes had shewed unto me, sayde unto my selfe, "O good Lorde what do these thinges meane, what shall I doe?" With that ther appered unto me my vysion agayne, which shewed unto me in wrytinge all y^e usery that ever I had receaved in all my lyffe so playnly that I redd yt, and in dede the sommes were true and named every man of whom I had resseyved yt, namynge the persons and y^e somes, as of one Mr. Wilkokes thus muche, of my L. Scrope thus muche, of Mr. Fynes thus muche, namynge every some, and he shewed me also what I had resseyved of Spanyardes, of Frenchmen, of Italyans, and suche lyke, which came to vj^{li}, shewinge so playnely I assure you every thinge that I much marveled at yt, and at the last I made answer unto my vision and saied, "O Lorde, all thes thinges are true in dede, what shall I do to yt?" Then my vision made answeere and comforted me verie muche agayne, commaundyng me fyrste to paye all y^e userie money agayne to every man as he had shewed me y^e somes, which came to xviiij*l*. Then he badd me pay agayne the fyftie poundes which I gat for bienge of a house in Holbarne, and for y^e vj^{xx}l. which I hadd of straungers he wyllled me, because that I know not wher they dwell, to gyve yt to y^e poore prisoners and goode men that be in prison. And maisters, I can not tell of what relygyon you be that be heare, nor I care not, for I speake to tell you the truth and to accuse myne adversary the dewelles, and in dede I have gyven them some thinge all redy and wyll gyve them all y^e rest, God willinge, and will paye all y^e userye mony to every man as my vision commaunded me, and do intende, God willinge, tomorrow to send for them yff I lyfe so longe; yf not, I wyll desyre y^e Master of y^e Rolles, as my trust is in hym, that he will se it dischargid and payed out of hand that my soulle may beare no perill for yt. And masters, then my vysion comforted me more and more, and he sayd he would shew me ix psalmes, which yf I dede saye every daye I shuld never synne agayne mortallie, for I assure you I have not used my sellfe to prayer as I was wont to doe, nor never wente to y^e churche at any tyme of comon prayer, bycaus I dyd condeme my conscyence for sufferynge me to commite suche abominable usery and other most detestable synnes agaynst my hevenly Father, who had so many folde wayes and sondry tymes shewed me such lovinge kyndnes and synguller graces. And y^e psalmes were thes: 1. Miserere mei Deus. 2. Beati omnes qui temet^a Dominum (128). 3. Ad Dominum cum tribuler. 4. Levavi oculos meos [in] montes. 5. Nisi quia Do. 6. Qui confidunt in Do. 7. Judica me Deus. 8. Illumina oculos meos. 9. Domini^a non est exultatum cor meum.

Anso so my vision left me. Sith which tyme I assure you I have had as muche quyetnes as any man can wishe, and have sene soch comfortable syghtes as nether harte can thyncke nor tonge expresse, and this I had to shew you. Now, good Sur John, say y^e vij psalmes, and Domine Jesu Cristy with gloriosa passyo he sayd hymselfe, and then he thought he shuld have died, but then brothe beinge geven unto hym he revyved agayne and fell to prayer and gave hym sellfe wholly to quyetnes, &c. -

In the yeare of our Lord 1562, y^e 8 day of Septembar, was a pryste (whose name was Ser — Havad) taken (by sertayn promotars and my Lorde of Elies^a men) for sayienge of masse in Fettar lane at my Lady Care's^b housse, whiche pryste was violently taken and led (as ten tymes wors then a traytur) throwe Holburne, Newgate markyt, and Chepsyd to the Cowntar at the stokes callyd the Pultrie, whithe all his ornaments on hym as he was ravist to mas, with his masse boke and his porttoys borne before hym, and y^e chalice with the paxe and all othar thyngs, as myche as myght make rewle poople to wondar apon hym. And the number of people was exsedyng great that folowyd hym, mokyng, derydyng, cursyng, and wyshyng evyll to hym, as some to have hym set on y^e pelory, some to have hym hangyd, som hangyd and qwarteryd, some to have hym byrnt, sum to have hym torne in pesys and all his favorars, with as myche violence as the devill collde invent, and myche more then I can wryte, but well was he or she that cowlde get a plucke at hym or gyve hym a thumpe with theyr fyst or spyt in his face, and to scorne hym with sange, Ora pro nobis Sancta Maria because it was our Lady day of hir nativite (but not kept holy), and all so they sange Dominus vobiscum and suche lyke. My Lady Care, with my Lady Sakefylde, and Mistres Perpoynt, and Sherewod and his wyffe war taken for beyng at y^e same masse, and browght before y^e Byshope of Elly, then lyenge in Holburn, and theyr housys sherechte, theyr bokes were all brought to y^e Byshope of Elly, who aftar examynation of them and theyr bokes sent them to prison. My Lady Care, and my Lady Sakefelde, Mistres Perpoynt to y^e Fleete, and the othar iij to y^e Cowntar, and with in iij days aftar the prist was sent to y^e Marshalse in Sothewarke. And on the second day of Octobre my Lady Care (beinge of y^e Quens blode), Mistris Perpoynt, the prist, and Sherewode and his wyffe were all v parsons browght from y^e prysons above namyd to the Sessions howsse at Newgate, and were ther arraynyd amongeste theves and mowrderars, and by xij men condemnyd as gilty. Y^e prist for preparinge hym selffe to say masse, the Lady Carie and Hary Sherwode and his wyffe for beyng wyllynge to here and se masse (for this is to be notyd, y^e prist did not say masse, but was redy ravist to masse and entered ther in, when he and they were taken). The prist had judgement gyven to hym prisoner in Newegatte xij monythis, my Lady Care and Mistres Perpoynt to ly prisoners in y^e Flett iij monythes, and in the thre monythes to pay to the quenes use ethar of them one hunderithe marks, or ells ther bodyes to remayn prisoners to y^e quenes plesure. And Henrie Sherwod and his wyffe, beyng a marchaunt taylor, wer adjudgyd syx monythes prisonment and to pay ethar of them an hundred marke, or ells there bodyes at y^e quenes plesure.

In y^e yere of owr Lord 1563 was suche scarsytye of victualls in London by the servyng Newhavne,^a that in y^e Lent heryngis was sold for ij a peny when they was best cheape ethar whit or red, Essyxe chesse for vj d. ye li. baryll buttar for vij and viij d. ye li., a bad stockefyshe for vj d. or viij d., and so forthe of all othar victualls. On Estar evyne y^e Parliament brake upe and gave to y^e quene a subsedie, and that was of everie man beyng valewyd worth iij li. on goods, or lands, or otharwys, and so uppewarde, ij s. viij d. of y^e li., besyds they gave her ij fyffens.

The viij daye of Julii, anno 1563, in y^e mornynge was great lyghtnyng and thundar, in y^e whiche was slayne a woman mylkyng and iij kyne, with in y^e Covynt gardyn whiche some tyme belongyd to y^e Savoy be yond y^e Temple bare; and many othar placis it dyd myche harme, of whiche one wase y^e steple of Seynt Androw in Howlburne wase smyttyn, many men, wemen, and cattayll wer slayne.

Anno 1563, y^e xxx of July, beyng Fryday, was one ——— whipt on a sekaffold at y^e Stondard in Chepe, his neke, his hands, and fett made faste to a stake a bove y^e sayd skafold with kolars of iron by y^e bedeles of y^e begars; some tym one, som tyme ij, some tym iiij attonce whipte hym, and they strove who mowght whype hym moste extremlye; it was for that he had betyn a boye with a lethar gurdle havynge a buckle of yron, whiche buckle smate in to y^e fleshe of y^e boye very sore.

Anno 1563, y^e 29 of Julii, was Newehaven delyveryd up to the Frenche men.

The 8 of Awgust, Turnar, commonly cawlyd Turnar of Bullyn, for that he had ben a prechar and ministar amongst the sowldiors at Boloigne, and had remayned there so longe as Boloigne was Englishe, so that he was called y^e parson of Bolen, prechid at Pauls Crosse, wher he made ij solome pettyssyons to my Lorde Mayre of London. The one was that the deade of y^e cittie shuld be buried owt of the citie in y^e fylde; the othar was that no bell shuld be tollyd for them when they lay at y^e marcie of God departynge owt of this present lyffe, affyrmyng that y^e ryngynge or tollynge of y^e bell dyd y^e partye departynge no good, nethar affore theyr deathe nor afftar.

Anno 1563, the 27 day of July, beyng Tuesdaye, Elys Hawll, of Manchester, was whipt at Bedlem by to mynysters or prechars, Philpot,^a parson of Sent Myhells in Cornhyll, and Yownge,^b parson of Sent Bartylmews y^e Lytyll, Fulckes y^e comon cryar of London stondyng by.

In Anno 1564 (accountpyng y^e yere to begyn y^e xxv of Marche), the xxv day of February, at xj of y^e cloke in y^e nyghte, deseasyd the abovesayd Eliseus Hawll, and was buryed on Shordche Churcheyarde on y^e Twesday, and y^e xxvij day of February, at xj of y^e cloke before none.

Anno 1563, in Septembre, the old byshopes and dyver doctors wer removyd owt of y^e Towre in to the newe byshopes howssys, ther to remayn prysonars undar theyr custody (the plage then beyng in y^e citie was thowght to be y^e caws), but theyr delyveraunce (or rathar change of prison) dyd so myche offend y^e people that y^e prechars at Poulls Crosse and on othar placis bothe of y^e citie and cuntrie prechyd (as it was thowght of many wysse men) verie sedyssyowsly, as Baldwyn at Powlls Cros wyshyng a galows set up in Smythefyld and y^e old byshops and othar papestis to be hangyd theron. Hym selfe died of y^e plague the next weke aftar.

This yere, 1563, was the tenauntis of the Chambre of London callyd before y^e Chambreleyn of London, beyng cawlyd ——— Sturgyn, Ser Thomas Lodge beyng Mayre, theyr renttis wer raysyd duble and treble, and forsyd to take leasys and gyve fyns for the same, or ells to for go theyr howsys, and they to have them that wold gyve moste for them. That same Ser Thomas Lodge (to y^e great slaundar of y^e wholl city) in y^e ende of his maioralitie professyd to be banqerowpte.

This yere 1563, in Septembre, the Quenes Majestie lyenge in hir castell of Wyndsore, ther was set up in y^e markyt place of Wyndsore a new payre of gallows to hange up all suche as shuld come ther from London, so that no parson or eny kynde of warrs mought come or be browght from London to or thurgh, nethar by Wyndsor, not so myche as thurgh y^e ryver by Wyndsor to cary wood or othar stuffe to or from London upon payne of hangynge with owt eny judgement, and suche people as reseyyd eny wares out of London in to Wyndsor were turnyd owt of theyr howsys and theyr howssys shut up.

Anno 1563, y^e 26 of June, was a mynyster,^a parson of Sent Marie Abchurche, of Sent Martyns in Iarmongar Lane, and of one othar benefice in y^e cuntrie, takyn at Dystaffe Lane ussynge an othar mans wyffe as his owne, whiche was dawghtar to Ser Myles Partryge and wyffe to Wyllyam Stokebrege, grosar, and he beyng so takyn at y^e dede doyng (havyng a wyffe of his owne) was caryed to Brydwell thurgh all the stretes, his breche hangynge aboute his knes, his gowne and his (kyvar knave) hatt borne aftar hym with myche honor; but he lay not longe ther, but was delyveryd with owt punyshment and styll injoyed his benefffys.^b They were greatly blamed that apprehended hym and comitted hym.

Turnar, of Bullyn, preching at Powlls Crosse y^e xxiiij of Octobre, anno 1563.

Syr Thomas Lodge, beyng Mayr of London, ware a beard, and was y^e fyrst that (beyng Mayr of London) ever ware eny, y^e whiche was thought to mayny people very strayng to leve y^e cumly aunsyent custom of shavyng theyr beards; nevartheles he ware y^e comly auncient bonet with iiij cornars as all othar his predysesowrs had done before hym. This Sir T. Lodge braky and professe to be banqweroute in his maioralitie to the grete slandar of y^e citie. But y^e next yere aftar Ser John Whit, beyng mayre, ware bothe a longe beard and allso a rownd cape that wayed not iiij ounceis,

^a His name was George Barton.

^b He was, however, deprived of both his London benefices some years later, viz. of St. Mary, Abchurch, in 1567, and of St. Martin's, Ironmonger Lane, in 1568. But before the occurrence mentioned in the text a George Barton is said to have been deprived of St. Swithin's rectory in London, in 1561.

whiche semyd to all men, in consyderation of y^e auncient bonyt, to be very uncomly.

This yere of our Lord 1563 was great lytnynge and thundar in Desembre from y^e fyrst day to y^e xij lyghtly every evynnyng and nyght, spesyally on y^e xij nyght, beyng Sunday, from viij of y^e cloke tyll somewhat past ix, that gretar lyghtnyng hathe not bene lyghtly sene at eny tyme.

Poynts of Devinitie: Anno 1564 (by order of the Kalendar), y^e yere to be accomptid from newe yers daye forward, on y^e Wedynsdaye, beyng y^e 26 of Januarie, wasse a solome sermon made at Powlls Crosse by Coale,^a Archedecon of Essyxe, wherunto was warnyd y^e Lord Mayre of London with y^e Aldarmen and Shrides, with allso the crafftis of y^e citie in theyr lyveries. Wher in y^e prechar dyd move y^e awdyence to rejoyce that y^e plage wasse cleane sessyd, and that God had cleane takyn it awaye from us. He sayd y^e cawsse ther of was y^e superstysyows relygyon of Rome, whiche was (as he sayd) so myche favoryd of y^e sytysyns. He gave ws warnynge to be ware therof, callynge it a falce relygyon, worsse then ethar y^e Turkis or y^e devyles relygyon. Moreover he sayd it stode upon iiij pilars which wer rotyn postis, that is to say, Imagis, Purgatory, y^e Sacrifice of y^e Masse, and Transsubstansyation, agaynst y^e which he dyd invaye, and sayd that yf we dyd not beware of falce relygyon, all thowght God had cleane takyn a way y^e plage, he wold send a worse apon use, that is to say, fyre and sword, which shuld slee y^e children at ther mothars brestes, y^e wyffes shuld be slayn from theyr husbonds, y^e husbonds from theyr wyffes, and one neyghbour shuld sleye an othar to have his goods. But to conclud with all, he perswadyd all states of y^e citie to rejoyce for that y^e plage was sesyd, for now, sayd he, shall yowr mayre ryde honorably acco[m]panyed with y^e aldermen and othar ther assystence y^e worshypfull of y^e citie; now shulde y^e lawyers be frequentlyd and set a worke, now shall y^e skolles be openyd, now shuld the marchantis have fre traffyke into all cuntries and nacions, wher as before all nasyons dyd abhorre them, now shall yow artyffysers rejoyce, for ye shall now sell yowr wares abundantly, and now shall ye be sett a worke even thorowly, wher as of longe tyme ye have had no worke but lyvyd in great penurye. Now, O ye artyfysers, shall ye take mony abundantly. O ye prentysys rejoyce, for now shall ye have yowr bellys full of meate, whiche of longe tyme have bene starvyd thrughe your mastars skarsytye.

On Wedyndyns daye, beyng Sent Mathews eve, and y^e xx day of Septembar, anno 1564, was suche hye tydes that all y^e maryshys about East Hame, and so to London, was ovar flowyd with watar, whiche dyd myche harme.

On the xxvj day of Septembar, in anno 1564, beyng Tweseday, ware arraynyd at y^e Gyldhalle of London iij personas and there caste, for y^e stelynge and receyvyng of y^e queens lypott,^a combe, and lokyng glasse, with a bodkyn of gold to brayd hir heare, and suche othar small ware out of hir chambar in her progresse. And on Thursday next afftar, beyng Myhilmas even, and y^e xxviiij day of Septembar, ij of them whiche had bene servantis in Chepesyd, one of them with Master Bakehowse, dwellyng agaynst y^e Standard, beyng a sylke man, were bothe hangyd before y^e Cowrte gatte, upon y^e gallows that stode on Hays Hyll, whiche was for that tyme remoyvd for that purpose to Saynt James, before y^e wall, beyng at that tyme y^e quee[n]s cowrte.

The xxix of Septembar, in Anno Domini 1564, was y^e Lorde Robart Dudleye, mastar of y^e queens horsse, creatyd Baron of Denbyghe and Erle of Lescestar at y^e queens cowrtte, then beyng Saynt James, be sydes Charing crosse.

The second day of Octobar, beyng Mondaye, in anno 1564, was kepte at Pauls a sertayne kynde of evenyng prayer as an osequye or memoriall of y^e deathe of Fardynando, latte Emperowr of Germanye, where y^e Lorde Hyghe Tresorar of England was y^e cheffe mowrnar amongst dyvars othar, as y^e Byshope of Cauntowrbery, y^e Byshopes of London and Rochester, with y^e Deane of Powles, &ct. And on y^e morow, beyng y^e iij of October, was selebratyd a comunyon to y^e offatory and no farthar, and so y^e Byshope of London went to the pulpyt and prechyd a sermond, and y^e herce, whiche was very fayr, of clothe, velvyt, and sylke, with frynge of golde, and banars very many and fayre, but no lyghts of waxe or othar wyse, stode tyll Monday next folowyng, whiche was y^e ix dai of Octobar.

The vij day of Octobar, beyng Satowrdaye, anno 1564, at viij a cloke at nyghte, was sene comyng out of y^e northe easte very great lyghtes lyke great flames of fyre, whiche shott forthe as it [were] gonepowdar fyeryd and spred out in a longe frome y^e northe easte, northe, and northe west, in dyvars placis at once; and all mett in y^e mydes of y^e fyrmament, as it war ryght ovar London, and desendyd somewhat west warde, and all y^e flames beyng ther gatheryd grew in to a rednys, as it were a very sangwyn or blode cowlar, and this contynewyd tyll ix of y^e cloke; and all y^e same nyght was more lyghtar then yf y^e mowne had shone moste bryght, wheras no mone shone that nyght, for yt chaungyd but one day before, whiche was Fridaye.

Anno Domini 1564, Master Newalle, Deane of Powles, preachyd at Polles Chrose y^e 19 of Novembar, where he protestyd that ther was not one trew worde in Master Dormars boke latly browght ovar from beyonde y^e seas.

The 20 of Novembar, beyng Monday, in y^e mornynge, a bowt vj of y^e clocke, throghe neglygence of a mayden with a candell, y^e snoffe ther of fawlynge into an hundryd wayght of gonne pothar, thre howssys in Bucklersbury war sore shaken, and y^e backar partes of y^e same howsyes wer all to blewne and shattard in pecis, and y^e afore sayde mayde was so byrnt that she dyede ther of with in ij dayes afftar; yf this powthar had bene in a sellar, as it was in a garret, it had donne myche more harme.

This yere 1564 was a sharpe froste, whiche began on Seynt Thomas daye before Cristmas, on y^e 21 daye of Desember, beyng

Thursdaye, and contynewyd tyll y^e 3 day of Janewarie beyng Wednysdaye; on y^e whiche Wednysdaye it thawyd bothe y^e daye and nyght folowynge, and y^e morow beyng Thursdaye also this forst as before is sayde begynynge on Sent Thomas day before Cristmas was so sharpe that on newyers even men went ovar y^e Thams as saffe as on the dry land, not only betwyxt Westmystar and Lambythe, but in all placis betwyxt Lambethe and the Olde Swane, they wente bothe ovar y^e Thames and alonge y^e same from London to Westmystar and from Westmystar to London, comynge a lande salffely (thankis be to God) wher they wolde betwen Westmystar and y^e Olde Swan, whiche is very nere unto y^e brydge. And y^e same newyers even, beyng Sondaye, people playd at y^e footte ball on y^e Thams by great nombars. On newyers day beyng Monday, and on Twesday and Wednysday, dyvars jentyllmen and othars set up prykes on y^e Thams and shott at y^e same, and great nombars of people beholdynge y^e same standynge at y^e prykis as boldly (and thankis be gyvyn to God a saffly) as it had bene on y^e drye lande. And I my selfe who write this notte wentte on y^e Wednysday before namyd frome Lambythe to Westmystar and there dynyd with Master Burre, who went thetar with me. And then we went agayne to y^e comon stayrs of Westmystar, and so upon y^e Thames to y^e Baynards Castell, where we went a land (thankys be to God) as saffe as ever I went in eny place in all my lyffe, where we sawe men shewte at a payre of prykes set up agaynst y^e queens cowrte upon y^e Thams, and costardmongars playnge at y^e dysse for aples, and y^e people went on y^e Thams in greatar nombars then in eny streat in London. The people went ovar y^e Thams on y^e Thursdaye at nyght, and on y^e morow, beyng Fridaye, was no yce on y^e Thams to be sene, but that all men myght rowe ovar and alonge y^e same, it was so sodaynly conssumyd.

Anno 1565, y^e yere begynynge y^e first of Januarie. The xxvj day of Januarie, beyng Frydaye, at nyght was ij tydes at London brydge; and on y^e morow, beyng Satardaye, was ij tydes in y^e mornynge and ij in the evenynge of y^e same day, and y^e morow, beynge Sunday and y^e xxviiij day of Januarie, was lyke wys ij in y^e mornynge and one in y^e evynynge.

The iij daye of Februarye y^e Lorde Darley departyd toward Scotland, who afftarward married y^e Quene of Scotts, &ct.

The vij of Marche beynge Asshe Wedensday, in anno 1564, Master Newalle, Deane of Powls, prechid at Westmynstar before y^e Queens Majestye, wher he so handelyd his mattar that the Quenes Majestic spake to hym owt at a wyndowe and bad hym goo to his texte, &ct.

The xxviiij day of Aprylle in y^e afftar none, anno 1565, fell so great an haylle that yt lay on y^e grownd in many placys about London more then xxiiij owres and ther with was iij or iiij great clapps of thundar. The morow, beynge Lowe Sunday and y^e xxviiij day of Aprille, was Wyllyam Man, of Soffolke in Sudbury, fownde hangyd with in Mistres Kyrtons palle in S. Andrews Wndarshafft paryshe in London; he honge hym selfe with his nyghte kercheffe on one of y^e pykes of y^e palle so that one of his fett towchyd y^e grownd. The morow, beynge Monday and y^e xxx day of Aprill, one mane rode on two staves borne on iiij mens showldars at S. Katheryns for that his next neybor sofferyd his wyffe to beat hym. There went with hym ny iijc. men with hand-gunes and pikes well armyd in cowrslytts.

On Lowe Sunday an Eryshe byshope of Irlande, beyng prisonar in y^e Towr of London, went quietly frome thens, beynge sene and spokyn with at his so goynge, and yet not knowne, whiche was myche to be merveylyd at, but he cowlde not be founde.

Anno 1565, y^e 20 dyay of June, at vij of y^e cloke at nyght, was y^e Lady Lynyt^a sent prisonar unto y^e Towr of London.

Anno 1565, the 16 day of Julii, at nyghte, beyng Monday, was very tyrable lyghtnyng and thundar, that the lyke in many yers hath not bene sene; y^e moste force therof was frome xij of y^e cloke at nyghte unto iij of y^e cloke in y^e mornynge; whiche dyd myche hurt in many placys of this realme.

Anno 1565, y^e 11 day of Septembar, beyng Tewsdaye, the K. of Swedons systar^a cam to London, and lodgyd at y^e Earle of Bedfords place at Yve brydge, and was ther delyveryd of male childe on y^e Satarday at nyght next folowyng, or y^e 15 day of Septembre.

Anno 1565, y^e 8 day of Octobar, y^e Mayre of London, beyng Ser Richard Malarie, ridyng toward the Towr Hyll thorow Towar Streate to take the mustar of sertayn horsmen, was mett by Ser Frauncis Jobson, Levetenaunte of the Towr (with a band of men dyd assalt),^b who forsably wolde have taken the swerd from the swerdberar before y^e mayre, in so myche that, the swerdberar holdyng the same very fast, the leffetenawnt so pulld therat that he pluckyd a way y^e skabard, rentyng the same with stryffe of them and y^e mayrs offysser, so that the mayre and his offysars had myche wyrke to deffend and kepe the sayd swerd, in so myche that the lyfftenaunt callyd for more ayde and assystaunce out of y^e Towr, and the offysars war myndyd to have rayssyd the Towre Streate, and so the holle citie with wepons, but the lord maior made proclaymacion that no man shuld draw eny wepon or stryke eny stroke, but every man to depart home, and all so the horssmen lyke wysse to depart tyll they were warnyd agayn, whiche on y^e same daye sevennyght, beyng lykewys Monday and the 15 day of Octobar, they dyd ther mustar beffore the maior in that sam place on the Towr Hyll before apoyntyd, and ther the mayr bare his swerd peasably as it befor tymes had bene used.

A Noate of Divinitye.

Colle, Assedeacon of Essex, preching at Powlls Crosse, anno 1565, the xj day of November, lykenyd the pristis unto appes, for, saythe he, they be both balld alyke, but y^t the pristis be balld before, the appes behynd.

Anno 1565, y^e Lorde Ambros Dudley, Erle of Warwyke, y^e 11 day of Novembar, maryed y^e Earle of Bedfords dowghtar, named Lady Anne, at Westmynstar. For y^e space of iij wekes before, a challenge was set on y^e cowrt gate at Westmyster, as folowythe:

Yow that in warlike ways and dedes of arms delight,
 Yow that for cuntryes cawse or ells for ladies love dare fyght,
 Know yow foure knyghts ther be that come from foren land,
 Whos hawtye herts and corage great hathe movd to take in hand,
 With sword, with speare and shild, on fote, on horse backe, to,
 To try what yow by force of fyght, or otharwyse, can do.
 Prepare yowr selves ther fore this challenge to defend,
 That trompe of fame yowr prowes great abroad may sownd and send.
 And he that best can do, y^e same shall have the price.
 Y^e day, y^e place, and forme and fyght, loo here before yowr eys.

The day was apoyntyed y^e iij of November, whiche was put of to y^e xj day of Novembar. At y^e tylt with eache one vj courses, at y^e torney xij strokes with y^e swerd. Thre pushes with the pounchen staffe and xij blows with y^e swerd at barryars, or twenty yf any be so dysposed.

The same xj day at nyght, sertayne peales of chambars was shot of at y^e bank ovar agaynst Westmyster, and one of y^e chambars brekyng slew y^e quenes scheffe mastar goonnar of Engeland, which was Master Robart Thomas.

The xxij day of Decembar, beyng Sondaye, at nyghte, in anno 1565, was a greate tempest of wynde where thrwge many persons were drownyd on the Thams and othar placis, and the great gattes at the weste ende of S. Pawls churche in London, wher is the brasen pilar was blowne wyde open, the wynd beyng in y^e west was of suche force.

The xxij day of February, 1565, beyng Friday, the howsys nere to y^e Cunduite in Cornhulle, abowt y^e nombar of lx households, poore and ryche, were cryed by the bell man a bowte y^e citie of London to be solde to them that wold gyve moaste for them, and remeve the same from thens, that in that place y^e marchaunts mowght buyld theyr bursse. Thos howsys were dyverse tymes so cryed and at y^e last solde, and they begane to pull downe y^e same shortly aftar owr Lady day in Lent. In y^e pullynge downe wherof dyverse persons were sore hurt and ij in great poryll of death; and by Whitsontyd next followyng in 1566 y^e same howsys were all pullyd downe and y^e grownd clearyd: all whiche chargis was borne by y^e citizens of London, and then possessyon gyven by sertayn alldarmen to Syr Thomas Gressham, who layed y^e fyrst stone (beynge bryke) of y^e fowndacion on y^e vij day of June, beyng Friday, in y^e aftar none next aftar Whitson halydays, betwen 4 and 5 of y^e cloke.

The xxxj day of Marche, in anno 1566, beyng Twesday, y^e parsons and mynystars of y^e churches in and about London were (by commaundment) at Lambethe, before y^e Archebyschoppe of Caunterbury^a and othar of y^e cownsell, wher charge was gyven to them to sarve theyr churchis and were theyr aparayll accordyng to y^e quens injunctions, or ells to do no sarvyce. And that same weke or y^e begynyng of y^e next came forthe a boke in print subscribyd by y^e Archebyschoppe of Caunterbury,^a y^e Byshopps of London,^b Wynchester,^c Elii,^d and dyvers othar, whiche apoyntyd y^e sayd mynystars to were theyre gownes and clokes with standyng colars and corneryd capse, and at theyr servyce to were syrplysys, or els not to mynystar, &c. Aftar this folowyd myche troble with y^e mynystar of y^e citie of London; for in moost paryshis y^e sextyn of y^e churche dyd all shuche servys as was done, and that in his coate or gowne as he comonly went about othar busynes. In some placis y^e mynystars themselvs dyd servyse in theyr gownes or clokes with turnyng colars and hatts as they wer wont to do, and prechid stowtly and agaynst y^e ordar taken by y^e quene and counsell and y^e byshopps for consentyng ther unto. And on y^e 23^e day of Apryll a beryng beyng at S. Gylls with owt Crippe gate, vj clarkes weryng syrplycs befor y^e corps, Crowley,^a vickar of that churche, stode in y^e churche dore and with stode them ther to entre, saynge the churche was his, and y^e quene had gyvne yt hyme duryng his lyffe and made hym vickar therof, wherfore he wold rule that place and wold not suffer eny suche superstycius rages of Rome ther to entre; wher uppon was lyke to have bene a great tumolte by the reson of partyse takynge, but in y^e end y^e clarks and those who toke theyr parte accordynge to y^e quenes prosedyng wer fayne to gyve ovar and to tary with owt y^e churche dore. Y^e 7 day of Aprell, beyng Palme Sondaye, y^e paryshe of S. Marie Magdalyn in Mylkestret, makyng labour to y^e byshope, had by hym a mynister apoyntyd to serve them with communion that day. And when y^e sayd mynystar was at sarvyce in a syrplyce and came doune to rede y^e pistle and ghospell, in y^e meane space one of y^e same paryshe cawsyd his servant to convey y^e comunyon cupe and y^e bread frome y^e table, wherby many persones that were determyned that day to have resevyd wer dysapoyntyd, y^e which fact was aftar but made a lawhyn game.

The xxx day of Marche, 1566, beyng Satarday, in y^e aftar none was a sore tempest of lyghtenyng and thundar with rayne very great. The day before was y^e Prynce and Martgrave of Badyn^b arestyd or stayed at Rochestar, wher he was dysguysyd lyke an espye and so to have stolne owt of y^e realme and his Lady Cisily his wyffe to have stolne afftar hym, levyng a great nombre of creditowrs unpaid, as theyr buttechar, bakar, bruar, mercer, taylowr, skynar, grocer, habbardashar, and othar, and yet his creditors for y^e same stayeng of hym were by y^e cowncell commaundyd, some to the Flett and some to y^e Marshalsey. The 26 or 28 of Aprell Cisily Marquese of Bawde was conveyed thrughe Kent towards Dover and so to sayll towar hir natyv cuntrye.

Robart, Erle of Lecestar, 1566.

The 2 of Aprell y^e Erle of Leyecester cam to London, beyng accompanyd with lords, knyghts, y^e pencionars and a great nombar of gentylnen and othars with y^e quenes fottmen and his owne also, all in theyr riche cotes and to y^e nombar of 700. He came in at y^e Temple barre and so thrughe Ludgate, Powlls churchyard, Cheape, Cornhyll, Gracious Strete, and then turnyd downe Lombard Strete and downe S. Nicholas Lane, and so to London Stone to y^e Erle of Oxforde place in S. Swythyns churche yard, wher it was apoyntyd that the Quenes Majestye (who had come frome Grenewytehe secretly in to Sothewarke, takynge a whiry with one payr of ors for her and two othar ladyes at S. Mary Overyes stayres, and so rowyd ovar to the Thre Crannes in y^e Vyntre, wher she entryd a cowche cyveryd with blewe and so rode to y^e same Oxforde place) to mett with y^e sayd Earle of Lecestar, who or her gracis comynge was retorned with his trayn thrughe Candelwyke Strete and Easte Cheape, and downe New Fyshe Strete, ovar y^e brydge, thrughe Sothewarke, and so by S. Georgys churche toward Grenewytehe. Not fer be yonde y^e sayd churche of S. George he stayde tyll y^e Quenes Majestie came frome y^e sayd Oxford Place before namyd the same way that she had passyd thethar tyll hym. She cam owt of hir coche in y^e highe way, and she imbrased y^e earle and kyssed hym thrise, and then they rode togythar to Grenewytehe. The same day at nyght from vij of the cloke tyll ix was sene in y^e elyment as thowghe the same had openyd y^e bredghte of a great shete and shewyd a bryght flame of fyre and then closyd a gayne, and as it ware at every mynute of an howre to opyn and close agayne, y^e whiche I beyng at y^e Barrs with owt Allgate sawe playne easte as it war ovar the churche namyd Whitchappell. It is sayd y^e Erle of Leyecester was retornyd frome London Stone before y^e Quenes Majestie came ther, for that she was not come when he came thethar.

Y^e same Palme Sunday in anno 1566, y^e 7 of Aprill, a Scott (who prechid ij tymes every day at Sent Magnus, and mynysteryd every day to all comars of y^e paryshe or eny othar in his gowne or cloke) prechid in y^e afternone at Lytle Allhalows in Thams Stret. Y^e moaste part of his sermon was (as the othar of his sermons were and are) agaynst y^e order takyn by y^e quene and counsell for y^e aparayll of mynystars before namyd, with very byter and vehement words agaynst y^e quene not here to be namyd, and allso agaynst mynystars as receyvyd y^e same ordre. The mynyster of y^e churche for savgarde of his lyvyng had receyvyd y^e cappe and syrplyce, where fore some tyme in y^e sermon he smylyd at vehemente talke by y^e prechar usyd to the contrary. Wher upon aftar y^e sermon sertayne of y^e paryshe, namly, Wyllson, a dyar, and Dyckynson, a fyshemonger, resonyd with y^e mynystar for his smyllyng at y^e prechar, who reasonably aunsweryd; but they toke y^e matter so grevowsly that they fell from rwghe wordes at y^e last to blowes with them who toke parte with y^e mynystar. The lyke dysquet doynge wer that daye in dyvars churches of y^e citie, and allso y^e lyke on Estar day or rathar worsse, so that in some paryshe churchis y^e people in great nombar beyng redy to reseve, suche quarylyng and contencion was betwen y^e mynystars and parishoners that to quyat y^e mattar y^e churche dores wer fayn to be closyd, and y^e paryschyns to departe unresevyng for that day. And on Low Sunday, beyng y^e xxj of Aprell, y^e worshypfull of y^e paryshe of Seynt Myldred in Bred strett, bryngyng a mynystar to serve the aftar none with a syrplyce, wer with stand by y^e parson and his adherents, so that at y^e last the cheffe of y^e paryshe with y^e aldar-mans deputy of y^e warde were fayne to cawse y^e mynystar to put on his syrplys and to do his servys, they standyng by on ethar syde to defynd hym tyll y^e end of servyce. Y^e mynystars and prechars that wer prehibytd to preche or mynister dyd mayny of them nevartheles mynystar and preache as they before had don, yewsynge words of great vehemencie agaynst y^e ordar before sayd set forthe, as also agaynst y^e quene, counseyll, and byshops for settinge forthe

y^e same. Y^e lyke sedyicious lybells wer wryttyn and strewyd about in y^e strets, and ij sortis of sedyicious boke wer set forthe in prynt and gyven at theyr mornyng congratyngs; the one entytelyd "The Voyce of God," set owt by one Towrs y^e coole takar of the Towre, a smaterar in musyke, and hathe of longe tyme laboryd to serve in Powls churche, and ther dayly to were a syrplice wer it but for xli. the yere. Thothar by y^e wholl multytud of London mynystars, every one of them gyvyng theyr advyce in wrytynge unto Robart Crowley (somtym a boke sellar), now redar at Sent Antholyns, person of S. Petar y^e Powre, prebend of Pawlls, vickar of S. Gills with owt Crippe gate, and deane of Harfford in Wales, who compilyd y^e same in to one booke, namyng y^e same "Y^e Unffoldyng of y^e Popyshe atyr;" agaynst y^e whiche boke an othar boke, beyng "A Playn Confutacion," was set forthe in print with y^e quens priveledge. It is to be notyd that y^e awthors of thos two books before namyd were no ways punyshid for y^e same, but only y^e printars were kepte in y^e Contar nyghe a fortnyght, tyll they had openyd who war y^e awthors, but they had frinds ynowe to have sete y^e whole realme togethar by the eares.

On the 3 day of June, beyng Whitson Monday, at nyght, y^e Scott (who before had ussyd to preche at S. Magnus and so sore to envey agaynst y^e capps, syrplisis, and suche lyke) dyd servys at S. Margaret Pattyns in Roode Lane, wher he ware a syrplice; and a sertayne nonbar of wyves threw stons at hym and pullyd hym forthe of y^e pulpyt, rentyng his syrplice and scrattyng his face, &c.

On y^e 4 day of June, beyng Twewssdaye in Whison weke, Philpot, summe tyme a scrivoner, othar redar at Sent Antholyns, person of S. Mihells in Chornhyll, person of Stepyne and othar spirituall possesyons, and Gowghe, an othar scrivoner, the third redar of S. Antholyns, person of S. Petars in Cornhyll, for that they were the moaste ernyste withstondars of y^e lawes of this realme before namyd consernyng y^e ordar of mynystacions, and y^e greatyst animators of all y^e wholl citie to do the lyke, upon whom y^e greatest nombar of othar mynystar dyd depend, beyng apoyntyd by the byshops to go to Wynchestar to Robert Horne, ther byshope, withe hym to perswad or be perswadyd for y^e space of xxj days, toke theyr jorney ovar London brydge thurgh the Sothewarke and so forthe to ward Wynchestar, beyng accompanied with a great nombar of wymen to y^e nombar of ij or iij c. ladyn with baggs and bottells to bancket at theyr departyng, gyvyng them golde, sylvar, sugar, spice, or othar wyse suche as they had, anymatyng them moaste ernystly to stand fast in y^e same theyr doctryn whiche they had tawght touchyng syrplysis, caps, and suche lyke. At Myhelmas next foloyng, Philpot subsribyng to them came to London agayn, wher beyng myche rebukyng of his brethern he sold up his movable goods and went to Rie, in Kent, wher he hathe xxxli. a yer, and servythe with owt a syrplise, and kepithe all his othar promocions still as Stapney, Cornhill, &c.

The 26 day of Januarie next folowyng, beyng Sunday, y^e Byshope of London comyng to Seinte Margarets in Olde Fishe Strete to preache in the fore none, the people (especially the wymen) that ware in y^e sayde churche unreverently howtyd at hym with many oprobrious words, and cryed "Ware horns," for that he ware a corneryd capp. For y^e whiche on y^e Satarday next, beyng the 1 day of February, one woman, beyng the wyfe of one —^a Symson, a tynkar, dwellyng in Sowthewarke, was sett upon two laddars lyke a cuckengstole before the same churche, where she satt the space of one owre, greatly rejoysyng in that her lewde behavowr, and that she was punyshyd for the same, and lyke wyse the beholdars of y^e same dyd myche rejoyce ther in and anymatyd the lewde woman to rejoyce and prayse the Lorde for that He had made hir worthy to soffer persecution for ryghtwysnes, and for the truths sake (as they said) and for crienge owt a gaynst supersticion as the termed it.

The 17 day off Februarie at nyght, beyng Monday, was a great watche in y^e citie of London, so that y^e Lord Maior, y^e shrives, and dyvers aldarmen them selves were abrode in the strets all that nyght with great nombars of people; whiche great watche contynewyd all that weke. Whiche watche was for feare of an insurrection agaynst y^e strangars whiche wer in great nombar in and about y^e citie, as in all othar porte townes and havens of the whole realme, and styll increasyd and do tyll this day, for y^e whiche we ar bownd to pray to God that some ordar may be taken by owr Prince for y^e contrarie. They have browght mayny howsys in y^e citie frome 40s. y^e yere to 20 nobles or 10*l*. with othar arroyauncis to y^e comon welthe with out nombar. The occasyon of this watche was thrwgh a portar who went about to dyvars prentises, tellynge them that that nyght folowyng woulde be y^e lyke stire agaynst straungars as was at Evyll May Day,^a &ct.; some of whiche pre[n]-tesys gave knowledge ther of to theyr mastars and theyr mastars to y^e lord maiore, &ct. The same portar was take, layd in y^e Countar, and on Friday aftar stod in Cheape on a scaffold.

On Shrove Monday, beyng y^e 10 day of Februarie, in y^e mornynge, y^e Lorde Henrie Dernley, Kyng of the Scotts, was mourderyd in Scotland. And on Fryday, beyng the 22 day of Februarie, in the evenynge about 5 of y^e cloke, y^e Lady Lynioxe, mothar to y^e sayd Kyng of Scotts. was delyveryd owt off the Towr of London and loddgyd at Salysbury Courte, callyd Sakvyll Place, in y^e Flete Strete.

to Richemount to y^e Quenes Majestie of y^e Sonday next folowyng, and agayn y^e next Sonday, &c. And on Wedenseday, beyng y^e 25 day of June in y^e mornynge, the Earle of Sussex with y^e yonge Lord Northe went onward of his journey as ymbasador to the Emperowr, and the same day in y^e aftarnone y^e embasadors of y^e Emperowr and of y^e Lady Regent of Flaunders departyd from London toward the sea to pase home warde.

The fyrst day of Julii to carts loden with haye, one betwen Eslendonne and Clerkenwell, y^e othar beyonde Eslyndon and Holowway at Rynges Crosse, wer set allyre and byrnt, no man can tell how, excepte y^e heate of y^e axeltrie shoulde be y^e cause.

The ij day of Julii Syr Nycholas Throkemorton toke his jorneye towards Scotland (as it was sayd by comon reporte, to fetch y^e yonge Prynce of Scotland); y^e 10 of September he enteryd into London homeward agayne.

The xxix day of Julii y^e yonge Prince of Scotland was crownd Kyng of Scotland.

About that tyme were many congregations of the Anabaptysts in London, who cawlyd themselvs Puritans or Unspottyd Lambs of the Lord. They kept theyr church in y^e Mynorys with out Algate. Afterwards they assomblyd in a shype or lyghter in Seynt Katheryns Poole, then in a chopers howse, ny Wolle Key in Thamse strete, wher only the goodman of the howse and the preacher, whose name was Brown (and his awditory wer cawlyd the Browyngs), were comytted to ward; then aftward in Pudyng Lane in a mynisters hows in a blynd ally, and vij of them were commytted to y^e Countar in y^e Poultrye. Then aftar, on y^e 29 of February, beyng Shrove Sonday, at Mountjoye Place, wher y^e byshop, beyng warnyd by the constables, bad let then alone. Then at Westmystar, the 4 of Marche, and in a goldsmiths house nere to the Savoy, the 5 of Marche, wher beyng taken to the nombar of 60 and odd, only 3 were sent to the Gatehouse. In many othar placis were and are the lyke. On Estar day at Hogston in my Lord of Londons mans house to y^e nombar of 120, and on Lowe

Sunday in a carpentars hous in Aldarman bury. It is to be noated that suche as were at eny tyme comitted for suche congregatyng were sone delyvered without punishemete.

- Memorandum quod anno Domini M.cccc.xlvj vel xlvij, et anno regni Regis Henrici vj^{ti} xxv^o, circa festum Purificationis Beate Marie, erat parlamentum apud Bury tentum, ubi Rex erat vigilatus et protectus qualibet nocte et die illuc veniens ubicumque jacuit, apud Royston, Cantabr', Novum Mercatum, et apud Sanctum Edmundum, quasi cum lx^{ta} milibus hominum et villanis, ad excita-tionem et concilium domini Pole ducis tunc tempore Suffolchie, pre timore domini Umfray ducis Glowcestrie Regis avunculi, qui, nichil malum cogitans vel suspicans, venit a Wallia juxta præceptum Regis ad parlamentum predictum ut haberet benevolentiam et gratiam Regis pro domina Elienora uxore sua, ut dictum erat, in Wallia inclusa et incarcerata. Verumtamen ad presentiam Regis venire minime potuit, nec cum eo loqui, sed clam missis a latere Regis, ut dicitur, ad eundem ducem quibusdam dominis secreto in camera ejus, ubi quid extitit ei dictum vel factum, diversi diversa suspicantur et dicunt; sed sine dubio post recessum dominorum ab eo taliter infirmabatur quod nullo modo ultra iij dies vivere^a potuit, nulla tamen lesione corporali exterius apparente; quo mortuo et apud Babwelle inter Fratres Minores ibidem sepulto, parlamentum statim dissolvebatur. Ante cujus mortem vise erant a diversis hominibus stelle mirabiles et cometa etc.; unde postea plura propterea contingebant inconvenientia &c. Nam eo tempore erant quinque homines suspensi et tamen non mortui.

1448. Tempore quadragesimali visa est stella comata a pluribus in Occidente, id est, ante Annunciationem Beate Marie.

1449. Item in festo Sancti Georgii, feria iij^a contingenti, extitit terremotus in mane parum ante horam quartam, que duravit quasi per spacium unius Ave Maria.

1449. Dominus Johannes Say erat tractus per quendam capitaneum de Kent qui insurrexit cum multis de Cancia et intravit London' cum manu forti, nullo ei in primis resistente vel contradicente; cui tradite erant claves civitatis London' per majorem et vicecomites et aldermannos; qui capitaneus decollavit predictum dominum Johannem Say in medio in le Chepe et spoliavit quendam divitem vocatum Mampace,^b et pompose p^c Set hoc con-comes de Hyu cum eo et unanimi concensu, ad fortificandum predictum Ducem Eboracensem contra Ducem de Somershed, eorum capitalem adversarium, ad concilium domini Regis versus Leycester. Set omnes isti irruerunt super predictum Ducem de Somershed cum manu magna armata tunc cum rege apud Sanctum Albanum existentem; et ibi in magno conflictu interfecti fuerunt antedictus Dux de Somershed et comes Northhumbrorum, Percy nomine, et Dominus de Clyfford, Willelmus Cotton, armiger, et Dux de Bokyngham lesus et plures alij de chevelria quasi xl^a ibi graviter erant vulnerati. Et episcopus de Carlhyll, filius dicti comitis de Northhumbryland, erat spoliatus omnibus bonis suis, tam in equis, jocalibus, familia sua et etiam a capa sua relictus erat solus tantum in rochetto fugiens pedester usque ad Islam, &c.

1456. Stella comata visa erat in occidente quasi per quindenam ante festum S̄ci Johannis Baptiste et post, que extendebat radium globosum sursum in ayerem usque firmamentum ad longitudinem unius lancee quo ad visum, &c.

1456. FERIA secunda in vigilia Sancti Thome Apostoli in mense Decembris per quarterium unius hore ante horam tertiam post mediam noctem erat terre-motus magnus ex quo plures audientes et sentientes^a erant exterriti; qui duravit per spacium dimidii unius Ave Maria.

et bonis inibi inventis per totam illam diem dominicam usque ad noctem, cariano cum bigis et wagnis ad naves suas in mare; et abduxerunt secum plures divites et uxores atque mulieres alias; et fugerunt, relicta predicta villa in magna paupertate et miseria. Et eodem tempore ceperunt duas galeas diversis mercimoniis onustas qui (sic) proposuerunt venisse ad Londonias et ad mundinas de Stebrigge, sed omnibus gubernantibus illas interfectis et in mare projectis, illas galleas secum asportaverunt.

Anno Domini M.CCCC.lix^o et anno regni Regis Henrici vj^{ti} xxxviii^o, mense Julii, venerunt comes de Warwyk, comes de March et comes de Salisbury, quia cum prius venissent ad Northampton et audito quod Rex erat presens clam fugerunt a[d] mare quousque &c. et tunc venerunt a Calissia de ultra mare ad Sandwyeh in Cantiam, cum magno exercitu in London', et honorifice erant ibidem recepti, tam a domino Archiepiscopo Cantuariensi, episcopis Eliensi et Excestrensi, et aliis pluribus; unde in adventu eorum dominus Schal' et alii existentes in Turri London' sagittabant fundibila (sic) extra Turrin ad eos, sed nemini nocuerunt. Et predictus comes de Warwyk assignavit quemdam armigerum validum cum sufficienti adjutorio ad custodiam predicti (sic) Turris ne inclusi exirent; sed cum predictus armiger navigaret sub muris Turris statim erat captus ab eis et membratim contrafactus &c. Unde, predictis dominis in itinere suo ad Regem tunc apud Northampton existentem progredientibus, cum ij legatis qui excommunicarunt certos dominos, contigit quod omnes venerunt ad exercitum Regis x^o. dies mensis Julii ejusdem anni, et Eboracensis dux cum alio magno exercitu ibidem erat. ut creditur, fere c.M^t; et in conflictu facto die Mercurii ab hora iij^a usque ad horam vj^{am} interfecti erant dominus Umfridus dux Bokyngham et dominus Beemond, dominus Scherwysbery et plures alii. Dominus Egrimond et episcopus Hertfordensis decapitatus (sic); et postea dominus Scal' exiens extra Turrin Londoniarum captus erat in Tamysia et interfectus, et plures alii ibidem incarcerati.

missam, semper occurrit ad mentem suam ut rediret ad Regem Edwardum, nesciens veraciter quid ejus negocium proficeret, aut pro se vel contra se. Sic sepius die ac nocte hoc in suo pectore revolvens, domum ad se reversus, credens se magis Deo placere et animam suam salvare, omisso negocii sui itinere, cum nimia festinatione ad Regem Edwardum cum omnibus literis in suo kascat existentibus rediit, gratiam et misericordiam ab illo petens, qua a Rege concessa, totum processum Regi intimavit ac omnes literas ei demonstravit. Hoc omni comperto et cognito, Rex accepit copias omnium illarum literarum et remisit nuncium prædictum in itinere suo ut prius proposuit, precipiens ei, ut juratus erat, ut esset fidelis sibi, et post negocium, si posset, rediret ad Regem, &c. Quo recesso Rex statim misit pro dominis et aliis qui proditorie cum decipere nitebantur, in quos judices Regis executiones impleverunt ut supra.

Cui senex dixit, "Veni istuc proxima nocte isto tempore noctis et dicam tibi aliqua nova," et recesserunt ab invicem. Secunda nocte similiter obviaverunt ut prius, sed puer valde erat timidus in ejus aspectu. Tertia nocte, ut videbatur sibi, non potuit eligere, sed potius coactus rediit ad eundem locum. Cui senex dixit "Vade jam et dic cuicumque quod infra istos duos annos erit tanta pestilencia et famis ac interfectio hominum quanta nullus vivens vidit perantea;" et hoc dicto recessit. A BRIEF LATIN CHRONICLE,

BEING THE CONCLUDING PORTION OF A WORK ENTITLED

[From MS. Arundel 5, College of Arms.]

Henricus vj^{cus} filius predicti regis Henrici apud Windeleshore in festo Sancti Nicholai episcopi et confessoris natus, in etate ix mensium et xv dierum, regnare cepit supra dicto ultimo die Augusti. Et in dominica die in festo Sancti Leonardi Abbatis, Anno Domini Millesimo cccc^o.xxix^o. et anno regni sui viij^o apud Westmonasterium coronatur, Domino Henrico Wintoniensi episcopo tunc cardinali tituli Sancti Eusebii ibidem presente. Et anno regni sui decimo idem rex apud civitatem Parisiensem ix^o die Decembris etiam coronatur, presente ibidem cardinale supradicto. Anno autem —^a hujus regis fuit prelium apud Vernoll in Perche inter Johannem ducem Bedfordie regentem Francie et Francos ac Scottos. Ubi cum dicto duce fuerunt Comes Sarum, Comes Southfok, dominus Wylughby, dominus Scales, dominus Ponynges, Willelmus Oldale cum retinencia ducis Exonie tunc infirmi. Et in dicto bello ex parte Francorum captus est dux de Launsoñ; occisi vero sunt ibidem bastardus de Launson, Comes de Navern et Comes de Marreboñ. Ex parte autem Scottorum perempti sunt Archibaldus Comes de Douglass, Comes de Boghan. Comes de Marre, Comes de Murrey, Jacobus Douglas filius dicti comitis, Alexander Lyndesey miles; Willelmus Douglas de Danlanryk,^b Matheus Pork, Hugo Orth, milites, et alii quam plures, tam de Francis quam de Scottis in ipso bello et fuga ad numerum vij M^l et ultra. Postea vero in foveis diete ville inventa sunt, ut dicitur, iiij M^l submersa.^a Et super his omnibus semper Deo gratias.

Anno xiiij^o hujus regis Henrici Philippus dux Burgundie, contra fidelitatem suam, villam Calisie obsidiavit cum magno apparatu et multitudine populi copiosa; fuerunt enim ibi, secundum estimationem, plus quam c. milia virorum. In tentoriis et pavilionibus x M^l, in magnis gunnis xxviiij, in cressetes ardentibus in nocte vij M^l, in gall.^b vij M^l, in parvis gunnis vocatis ribaldis vij M^l, in crosbowes x M^l, in carectis xij M^l.

Pro qua quidem obsidione dissolvenda transfretavit Dominus Humfridus, dux Gloucestrie, cum quam pluribus magnatibus et proceribus ac multitudine populi ad numerum lx M^l, Calisiam usque properans. Sed ante ipsius adventum, Comes de Morten et Dominus de Cammysh cum suis ad numerum ij M^l di. dictam villam Calisie tutissime conservantes illam obsidionem infra dies paucos viriliter confregerunt et plurimos ibidem occiderunt. Qui quidem dux Burgundie cum suis, cognito quod dux Gloucestrie cum tanta potestate Anglorum in proximo adventaret, veritus et confusus, celerrime capit fugam. Postea vero quam predictus dux Gloucestrie Caliam^a venisset, exinde in Picardiam et Flandiam per dies xj procedendo villas combussit. Ubi etiam Comes Huntingdon et sui villam de Popering cremaverunt ac plurimos peremerunt, et circiter festum Sancti Bartholomei Apostoli proximo sequens Dux Gloucestrie memoratus ac magnates cum proceribus et populo suo in Angliam prospere remearunt.

Anno eodem, infra mensem proximo sequentem quo prefatus dux Burgundie villam Calisie taliter obsedisset et inde gratia Dei profugatus fuisset, Jacobus rex Scottorum perjurus Castro de Rokesburgh in Northumbria cum suo exercitu, ut fertur, ad numerum c M^l et ultra, obsidionem opposuit; ubi nichil profecit. Nam pre-nobilis ille miles Radulphus Greye, cum lxxx viris strenuis, dictum castrum fortiter custodivit et dicto regi Scottorum et exercitui suo viriliter restitit. Audito autem quod Archiepiscopus Eboracensis, episcopus Dunelmensis ac Comes Northumbrie cum maxima potestate borealium eisdem obviare infra breve proponebant, rex prefatus et suus exercitus territi et confusi protinus aufugerunt. Et circiter mensem Martii extunc proximo sequentem idem rex, iniqua suasionem ac consilio Comitis de Athel, avunculi sui, et aliorum sibi in hoc favencium, per quemdam Scottum, Willelmum Grame vulgariter nominatum, et quosdam alios, nocte quadam, dum se rex ad lectum disponebat, camisia et braccis solummodo indutus, improvise territus et in cloacam proprie camere fugatus, cum spatibus crudeliter et inhumane est occisus. Fertur enim ipsum circa xxx vulnera in corpore habuisse, quorum vij letalia videbantur. In evidenciam cujus rei quidam legatus apostolicus in Scotia tunc existens dictam camisiam postmodo Domino Pape, ut dicitur, deferebat. Benedictus sit Dominus Deus qui tam sepius servulos suos eripuit de manibus querencium eis mala, perjurosque et pacem turbantes confudit et evertit!

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.xlv., xxx die mensis Maii coronatur Margareta filia regis Cecilie in reginam Anglie apud Westminsterium. Sed advertendum est quod infra breve post contractum factum cum dicta Margareta in partibus transmarinis per Willelmum duce[m] Suthfolk, amissa est Cenomania cum Andegavia. Deinde paulatim (quorum prodicione aut ignavia novit Deus) amissa est tota Normannia cum civitate Parisius, &c. Deinde similiter amissa est Burdegalia cum tota Vasconia, &c. Ad cujus recuperacionem missus est nobilis ille belliger Comes Salopie cum filio suo, domino de Lyel, et aliis, qui viriliter eam recuperaverunt. Sed, quod dolenter refero, incaute seu capitate se dantes cuidam conflictui cum Francigenis, ibi interfecti sunt, et readquisierunt Francigene omnia que illic erant, et sic adhuc pacifice detinent.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.lvij^o. spoliata est villa de Fowe in Cornubia per piratas; et eodem anno in mense Augusti spoliata est villa de Sandwiche per piratas, et naves et pene omnia bona mobilia in utrisque villis abducta sunt.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.lvij^o. et lvij extitit quidam nomine Raginaldus Pokok, nacione Wallieus, sacre theologie doctor, et Cicestrensis episcopus, ingenio quidem et scientia satis clarus, et in primeva etate reputatus boni regiminis, et honeste fame; hic tamen posterius, instigante Diabolo, proprio nimis innitens ingenio, proprie salutis et aliorum factus quasi immemor, postposita, imo quasi fere rejecta, priori innocencia, et in multis fide sprete catholica, sanctorum doctorum et patrum sanctiones et dicta, imo scripture sacre supereminentem veritatem quasi pro vili habens, dictamen rationis humane in multis extulit super hec omnia. Unde sic, velut secundus Lucifer supra ceteros estimans se et extollens, veteres quasdam pestiferas hereses damnatas renovavit, novasque satis noxias superadjecit, quarum multas, tum propter earum enormitatem, tum propter aliorum infirmorum scandalum, silencio committendas esse sacius estimo quam dicendas. De Eukaristia divinissima protervissime sensit, et Sanctum Dionisium pro se allegavit, qui tamen Dionisius plane in contra scripsit. Ecclesiastica divina officia per sanctos patres disposita, et a multis sanctis probateque vite viris a diu in ecclesiis usitata ad Dei laudem et fidelium salutem, vilipendit; quattuor articulos simboli sacro-sancti omisit, &c.^a Circiter istud tempus Jacobus rex Scocie populum suum nobiliter rexit, fures et oppressores cohibens, agriculturam ampliandam, sanctam(?) justiciam servans. Hic anno Domini 1460, cum suo exercitu obsedit castrum Rokisburgh et per propriam gunnam suam diruptam, cui astitit, interfectus est. Exercitus tamen ejus idem castrum prostravit et recessit

Anno Domini millesimo cccc°.lvij., sacro tempore quadragesimali, London' facta est concordia inter Dominum Ricardum ducem Eboracensem, Comitem de Warwyc, et comitem Sarum, cum suis, ex parte una, et ducem Somersetie, et Comitem Northumbrie et dominum Clifford, cum suis, ex parte altera, per illustrem regem Henricum et alios dominos regni spirituales et temporales; gravis enim, et periculosa dissensio orta fuerat inter predictos dominos super interfeccione quorundam dominorum apud villam Sancti Albani; quorum interfeccio inquietans et accendens corda multorum, satisfactione quadam facta, prestante Altissimo, partim sopita est. Sed non diu permansit. Nam anno Domini millesimo cccc°.lix°, insurrexerunt iterum predicti domini, scilicet Ricardus, dux Eboracensis, comes Merchie, filius ejusdem ducis, comes Sarum, comes Warwyc, cum grandi comitatu, et juxta Ludlaw circiter festum Sancti Edwardi Confessoris, ad bellum campestre se parabant. An sic convenerant ad reformandum mala regni, aut sui ipsorum salvam custodiam, vel quavis alia causa, novit Deus. Contra quos rex ipse cum proceribus regni et copioso exercitu in bellum properavit; mora autem ibi facta, recesserunt multi a duce et comitibus et regi se submittentibus ad gratiam ejus recepti sunt. Dux autem Eboracensis cum predictis dominis et paucis de suis, relicto in nocte campo, celerem fugam inierunt. Dux namque Eboracensis cum paucis Hyberniam adiit; tres reliqui comites cum paucissimis usque Calisiam navigio pervenerunt. Confiscantur interim eorum predia, diripiuntur alia bona. Interim inter ducem Somersetie, capitaneum castri de Geynes, cum suis, et Calisienses, facti sunt interdum conflictus, et multi corruerunt.

Eodem anno, circiter festum Sancti Edmundi Regis et Martiris, convocato parlamento apud Coventre, indictati sunt ibidem dicti Dux et tres Comites cum aliis multis militibus et magnatibus super grandi prodicione et declarati pro ateyntid traytours per dominos illius parlamenti; et ea que per dictos duces et dominos de insurreccione sua apud villam Sancti Abani in priori parlamento approbata sunt, in isto penitus sunt cassata. Et in festo Sancte Agnetis proximo sequente, dicti Dux et domini in civitate London. publice proclamati sunt pro ateyntid traytours, et sic manserunt usque circiter festum Sancti Johannis Baptiste proximo sequens.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.lx^o, circiter festum Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptiste, redierunt predicti tres comites in Angliam cum comitatu mediocri, et multi, audito eorum adventu, adhererunt eis. Civitatem London. infra octavas Apostolorum Petri et Pauli pacifice ingressi sunt, et, quibusdam ob scelera sua in Chepa decapitatis, duo comites iter versus regem arripuerunt. Et in festo Sanctorum Septem Fratrum, facto congressu juxta Northampton, favore cujusdam domini ex parte regis regale tentorium ingressi sunt et victoriam obtinuerunt. Ubi interfecti sunt, ex parte regis, dux de Bokyngham, comes Salopie, dominus Beaumont, dominus Egremund, cum aliis, et multi ex ea parte fugientes submersi sunt. Rex vero cum comitibus Merchie et Warwie, London. honorifice reductus, in pallacio episcopi Londoniensis hospitatus est.

Interim, domino Scales cum multis aliis Turrim London. servante, factis jacturis gunnorum in extra existentes obsessores Turris et nautas in Tamesi, multi interfecti sunt. Tandem, reddita Turre predicta Johanni Wenloe militi obsidenti eam, dominus Scales in nocte Sancte Margarete volens in cimba evadere ab insidiantibus sibi, captus et interfectus est. Et infra breve Thomas Browne miles cum aliis quinque qui super extoreione rapinis et prodicione damnati sunt apud Tyburne decapitati sunt.

Hoc etiam anno, circiter festum Nativitatis Beate Marie, dux

Eboracensis cum suis de Hibernia in Angliam rediit; et parliamentum apud Westmonasterium circiter festum Sancti Dionisii inchoatum erat. In Crastino Sancti Dionisii idem dux ad Westmonasterium veniens ense erecto palacium regale ingressus ibi hospitari elegit. Adductis evidenciis quibusdam, se verum heredem corone et regni Anglie asserebat; cujus evidencie in illo parlamento palam ostense in summa tenor talis erat:—

Cassata et annullata sunt in hoc parlamento ea omnia que contra dictum ducem Eboracensem, comites, et alios eis adherentes in parlamento priori apud Coventre edita sunt aut decreta, et restituti sunt dicti domini dux et comites, cum sibi adherentibus, terris suis, prediis et juribus prehabitis. Cassata sunt insuper et annullata in hoc parlamento omnia que statuta seu decreta sunt per Henricum iiij in suis parlamentis quo ad successionem sue sobolis in regnum et coronam Anglie, cum ipse intrusor esset, et jus hereditarium corone et regni Anglie pertineret ad Philippam filiam Leonelli filii tercii Edwardi iiij, et per eam ad comitem Marchie et heredes suos ut supra. ✓

Prorogato parlamento, iste dux Eboracensis (cum filio suo Edwardo),^a et comes Sarum (cum filio suo Thoma),^a cum decenti apparatu iter ceperunt versus partes boreales ad sedandas turbulencias ibidem et malefactores castigandos; unde ad villam de Wakefeld venientes in sancta ebdomada Nativitatis Dominice, in crastino Sancti Thome Martiris ad pugnā se parabant. Sed declinante jam die, sive incuria et negligencia sua, sive fraude et fuga magne partis sui exercitus, cum proceribus et valettis plurimis interfecti sunt per ducem de Somersett, dominum Clifford, dominum Newyle, &c., qui cum ferocibus belligeris in illos crudeliter irruerunt; quorum dominorum interfectorum capita, ut dicitur, super muros civitatis Eboracensis obprobriose et dissona (?) nimis sunt exposita. Hoc tempore commissa est custodia Turris London. certis Aldermannis et civibus ejusdem civitatis.

Quibus ita patratu rex Henricus cum duce de Northfolk, Comite de Warwic et aliis dominis et magno exercitu versus boream properabat. Vento autem ad villam Sancti Albani, occurrerunt eis dux Somersetie, dominus Clifford, &c. cum suo exercitu; et conserto gravi prelio xiiij^o kl. Marcii, sc. in die Carneprivii, multi inde et hinc interfecti sunt.

Et fugientibus plurimis ex parte regis, fugam etiam inierunt dux Northfolk, Comes Warwic, Comes Arundell, dominus Boughsher, dominus de la Ware, cum multis aliis. Regem Henricum sic in campo derelictum accedens dux Somersete cum ceteris dominis, &c. recepit in suam, ut ita dicam, tutelam seu custodiam. Dominus autem Bonwyle et Dominus Kyre,^a cum viderent hujusmodi casum et fugam suorum, attoniti regi se submiserunt. Quos et ipse libenter suscepit in gratiam; attamen, omni equitate seposita, nequicia quorundam decapitati sunt.

Facti sunt tunc insultus et inclamationes satis superbe per boreales belligeros adversus cives Londonienses, quibus illi viriliter resistentes, quosdam eorum occiderunt; reliquos in fuge latebras compulerunt, auxiliante Altissimo, cui sit laus perpes et humillima graciaram accio. Hac tempestate sevissima Borealium latronum prevalente, multe domus religiosorum, multe ecclesie, multi burgi et ville per eos nequiter spoliatae sunt; nec impune, ut infra patebit. Deceverant etenim Boreales illi predicti, promittentibus hoc eis dominis suis, ut nominatissimam illam civitatem Londoniarum cum provinciis adjacentibus spoliarent, vastarent et subverterent; quod et ex verisimili perpetrassent, si non singularis gracia Christi Jesu servulis suis celerius consolatorem et laude dignum destinasset defensorem.

Tercio namque kalendas Marcii illustrissimus ille princeps Edwardus, pro tunc Comes Merchie dictus, auditis prius his civitatis London. et vicinarum provinciarum periculis, post victoriam inimi-corum suorum in partibus celitus Wallie adeptam, adjuncto sibi Comite Warwic, cum grandi comitatu pacifice London. est ingressus. Secessit interim rex Henricus cum ducibus, comitibus et belligeris Borealibus versus Boream et Eboracum usque pervenit.

Edwardus autem predictus ij^o die Marcii proclamari fecit London. articulos concernentes jus suum ad coronam regni Anglie; et sequenti die, convocatis dominis spiritualibus et temporalibus illic presentibus, expressi sunt predicti articuli coram eis et approbati. Quarto autem die ejusdem mensis post processionem generalem London. sollemniter factam, episcopus Excestrensis ad crucem Sancti Pauli sermonem fecit satis laudabilem, titulumque dieti Edwardi ad regnum Anglie multiplici evidenciam patefecit; objectionibus que in ejus oppositum fieri possent patulo respondit, et eas excussit. Completo sermone isto eximio, dominus Edwardus cum dominis spiritualibus et temporalibus et magna populi frequentia eodem die ad Westmonasterium equitavit; ubi in Westmonaster hall sedis regalis possessionem suscepit. A monachis quoque ibi cum processione sibi occurrentibus honorifice receptus est. Commendato eidem per eodem sceptro regali, possessionem in regis palacio obtinuit. Nec dum tamen inunctus est aut regio diademate insignitus; sed his decentissime peractis, ad locum suum London., congaudentibus populis, remeavit.

Facta interim sagaci provisione pro magna pecuniarum levanda copia, dictus Edwardus cum duce Northfolk, comite Warwic, domino Fauconbrigge, in copioso exercitu septentrionales oras petierunt. Cum autem pertransita Trenta prope Ferebrigge, advenissent, quoniam exercitus regis Henrici non longe a dicta villa aderat, ad pugnam se protinus preparabant. Die igitur sacratissime Dominice Palmarum, post meridiem, inter Ferebrigge et Tadeaster, accedentibus aciebus utriusque exercitus ut mutuos ictus confligendo ingererent, plurimi equestres armaciores ex parte regis Edwardi terga vertentes et dieti Edwardi cariagium et annonam hostiliter auferentes effugerunt. Sed rex Edwardus virili animo suos animavit ad certamen; dux quoque Northfolke, Comes Warwic, dominus Fauconbrigge, cum suis turmis audacter in adversarios irruentes, plurimos prostraverunt, et horrendam stragem eis intulerunt, multis ex parte sua occisis. Cumque post diutinam pugnam belligeri Boreales, cernentes se imbecilliores, fuge presidio se commisissent, insecuti sunt eos viri acriores ex parte regis Edwardi et magnam cedem eis intulerunt; plurimi quoque ipsorum Borealium per aquas evadere querentes submersi sunt. Numerum interfectorum ibi solus veraciter cum suis civibus novit Deus; secundum tamen estimacionem plurium numerus eorum excedebat [xxviiij M^l].^a Domini multi et milites multo plures cum plebanis ibi pariter corruerunt.

Fugientes duces Somersete et Exetrie cum reliquis, insecutus est dominus Edwardus cum suis dominis et exercitu, et Eboracum usque pervenit; eos tamen minime comprehendit, quia Rex Henricus et ipsi domini prius fugerant ab Eboraco ut alibi locum presidii sibi obtinerent. His ita Dei gracia peractis, dominus Edwardus, relicto in Borea domino Fawconbrigge cum militibus et armata manu ad tutelam illius patrie, per Coventriam London' reversus est, apud Lambythe hospicium eligens. Interim Scotti in Berwicum admissi sunt a rege Henrico. Deinde dominus Edwardus a Lambythe usque ad Turrim London. veniens, creatis ibi militibus de Balneis, die sabbati proximo sequenti a Turre London. cum dominis et militibus per Chepam equitans Westmonasterium usque pervenit, ubi in die dominica, scilicet in vigilia Apostolorum Petri et Pauli, in regem Anglie eo honore quo congruit et ordine decentissimo coronatus est. Qui etiam, gloriam glorie volens superaddere, in festo Commemoracionis Sancti Pauli, in ecclesia cathedrali ejusdem London. processioni et misse coram magna populi frequentia cum dominis suis spiritualibus et temporalibus, corona insignitus regali satis interfuit apparatu. Deinde rex Edwardus Cantuariam peregre profectus partes meridionales pertransiit,^b ubi Willelmum episcopum Wintoniensem de manibus querentium animam ejus eripuit, insectatores suos graviter redarguit et eorum capitaneos carcerali custodie mancipavit. Bristollie approperans, a civibus ejus cum maximo gaudio honoratissime receptus est. Et in breve ad Westmonasterium veniens, ibidem anno Domini millesimo cccc^{mo}.lxi. ij nonas Novembris solemniter parlamentum suum inchoavit, ubi indictati et atteyntati sunt Henricus vocatus nuper rex Anglie cum Margareta consorte suo; duces etiam Somerset et Exetre, cum aliis militibus et nobilibus, ad numerum quasi centum personarum. Eodem anno, circiter festum Purificationis beatissime semper Virginis Marie, facta est conspiratio contra dictum dominum regem Edwardum per Comitem Oxon. et filium ejus, Tudnam, Terell, Mowgomere, cum aliis, ut in parte Esexie introducerent ducem Somersetie per navigium cum hostili exercitu ad eversionem regis Edwardi et suorum. Sed succurrente Altissimo, priusquam propositum suum perficerent, deprehensi sunt, et, cassatis frivolis machinationibus suis, Comes ille cum filio suo et aliis Londoñ decapitati sunt. His diebus Henricus cum Margareta et filio suo Edwardo in Scotia commorati sunt, et villa de Berwyke sub dicione Scottorum erat longo tempore. Circiter festum Sancti Mathie dominus rex Edwardus, versus Boream iturus, festum Pasche solemniter celebravit Leycestric, et pretextu resistendi adversariis grandes pecuniarum summas per sua privata sigilla a viris spiritualibus et temporalibus, clericis et servientibus levare fecit.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.lxij^o sexto die mensis Maii solutum est predictum parlamentum; et eodem anno circiter festum Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptiste capte sunt treuge ad tempus modicum inter Anglos et Scottos, fraudulenter ex parte Scottorum, prout palam postea patuit.

Hoc quoque tempore emissi sunt multi belligeri cum domino Fauconbrigge ad maria scrutanda et servanda, qui parum proficientes in breve remearunt. Rex Edwardus pro materia ejusdam vidue rapte disciendi in propria persona in bancho suo regali Westmonasterii, assistentibus sibi cancellario et justiciariis, &c. proprium locum tenuit.

Eodem anno, circiter festum Omnium Sanctorum, percurrente rumore de adventu regine Margarete cum copiosa multitudine Francigenorum, Scottorum, et Anglorum sibi adherentium, pre-cessit festine prenobilis ille belliger Comes de Warwik cum suis, et subsecutus est rex Edwardus ut eam cum complicitibus suis effugarent. Que fuga inita tuciora quesivit presidii loca.

Rege Edwardo in partibus illis residente, obsessa sunt per nostrates castra illa de Bamburgh, Alniwyke et Dunstanburgh; quorum duo reddita sunt in manus comitis Warwic circiter festum Natalis Domini; subjeceruntque se Dux Somersetie et dominus Radulphus Percy, cum suis, domino regi, et in gratiam recepti sunt.

In aurora Ephiphanie venerunt Scotti cum Francigenis aciebus densatis ad tercium castrum, scilicet Alniwyke, nostris non audentibus eis resistere, et secum tulerunt multos illic inclusos de consociis suis; et sic in breve redditum est illud castrum in manus nostrorum, Francigenis remanentibus gratis abire permissis. His peractis recessit dominus rex Edwardus, relicto ibidem ad tutelam patrie comite Warwic, &c.

Et in hac tam longa mora tocius pene milicie Anglicane illic adversus adversarios nostros congregate, quid, queso, memorabile, quid laude dignum actum est, nisi quod predicta tria castra capta sunt? Et comes Warwic cum paucis campum tenens curiose viriliterque Scottos cum suis excuciens, protegente eum gratissima, ut solito,^a Dei dextra, illesus permansit. Qui et infra breve cum aliis dominis, Boream relinquens, ad dominum regem Edwardum London. venit; epulantibusque illis London., et nescio quid agentibus, invaserunt Scotti cum Francigenis castrum de Bamburgh, et ipsum occupaverunt, cum aliis duobus castris.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc^o.lxiiij, xxix die mensis Aprilis inchoatum est parleamentum apud Westmonasterium; et interim dominus Radulphus Percy et Dominus Radulphus Greye, cum suis, fracto suo juramento, relicto rege Edwardo, ad partem Henrici redierunt.

Meuse Junii, die xviiij^o, prorogatum est parleamentum usque ad ———^b et que mala ibi repressa aut reformata, vel quid boni ibi adauctum nescio.

Hoc anno, post Pentecosten, prenobilis ille comes Warwic ad

Boream rediens dominos et milites cum reliquis belligeris colligens, partem regis Henrici cum Scottis, Francigenis, &c. infestare disposuit. Qui cognito celeri^a ejus adventu, campum linquentes, tergaque vertentes, vecorditer aufugerunt.

Hoc tempore convocatus clerus provincie Cantuariensis concessit ut quilibet sacerdos stipendiarius diete provincie capiens pro annuali stipendio x marcas conferret ad subsidium regis Edwardi xij s. iij d.; unde plurimi gravati murmurabant, tum quia pauperes erant, tum quia pecunie taliter a sacerdotibus extorte raro vel nusquam ad aliquem felicem effectum proveniunt, quin potius ad confusionem et dedecus eis utentium. Nam et post festum Nativitatis beatissime Marie semper Virginis rex Edwardus grandem exercitum advocavit, adversarios suos terra marique subjugare disposuit. Nescio tamen quid in illo viagio profecerit. Et comes de Worcester cum suo navigio et marinariis litoribus maris et portibus quasi latitantes, annonasque suas consumentes, infecto negotio vacui cum dedecore remearunt. O infelix successus, opprobrium et confusio!

Circiter hec tempora quarterium frumenti vendebatur Oxon. et [in]^b patria illa pro ij solidis; unde et ruricole super precio parvulo iterato murmurabant.

Dux Somersetie, in conversacione sua et promissis instabilis, relicto rege Edwardo cum paucis ad regem Henricum confugit, &c. Rex Edwardus, consiliariis accitis, minuit pondus nummismatis argentei. et auxit valorem aurei, adeo ut unum nobile aureum valeret viijs. iij d.

Hic etiam rex Edwardus redditus et proventus collegiorum eorum nobilium, scilicet Beatissime Marie semper Virginis de Eton et beati Nicholai Cantbrigie, per bone memorie Henricum Sextum fundatorum et nobiliter ditatorum, etc. in suas manus suscepit. Partem tamen aliquantulam eis restituens, unde pauperiorem quar solite ducerent vitam, vasa argentea^c multa et summam magnam pecunie ab eis exegit et cepit. Bullis papalibus obtentis, collegium illud celebre de Eton. cassare proposuit; quod tamen, ut estimo, beatissima Virgo Maria nondum ad effectum deduci permisit.

Anno Domini millesimo cccc°.lxiiiij°, epulante rege Edwardo cum dominis suis London., per belligeros regis Henrici capta sunt castra de Norham et Shipton in Crawyn; et in breve processit rex Edwardus versus Boream ut amissa recuperet et habita defendat. Quid tamen utile ibi gesserit nescio. Cumque tempora multa sic vacua lucris et tediosa, inaniter vexatis legiis regis, sibi paulatim succederent, prenobilis dominus, dominus Georgius, pro tunc Exeterrensis episcopus et Anglie Cancellarius, condolens tantos labores et sumptus inani dispendio et damnoso esse consumptos, assumptis viribus, maturo consilio super his infortuniis reformandis prehabito, ðivine gracie se et regni negocia commendans, ad consolandum et animandum fratrem suum, dominum Johannem de Mowntagw, iter versus partes Boreales fiducialiter arripuit. Et in breve, Domino de Mowntagw cum suis belligeris arma potentibus resumente, cepit paulatim pars Henrici succumbere. Secundo namque die mensis Maii dominus de Mowntagw cum suis comitibus conflictum iniit cum duce de Somersett, domino Roos, domino Hungarford, domino Radulpho Percy, domino Radulpho Greye, domino Ricardo Tunstall, domino Thoma Findern, cum aliis capitaneis exercitus regis Henrici et vulgo multo; et, interfecto illic domino Radulpho Percy cum aliis quibusdam, reliqui fuge presidio evaserunt.

Quintodecimo insuper die ejusdem mensis Maii Dux Somersett, dominus Hungarford, dominus Roos, armiger ille Treilboz^a cum suis complicitibus, graviter ferentes suam repulsam et propositi prioris frustracionem ad bellum campestre juxta Exham, iterum spe fruende victorie convenerunt. Quos dominus de Mowntagw cum suis, quasi subito insiliens, dictum ducem et dominum Thomam Findern, dominum Egremound, bastard Waynsford, etc. cepit et tutele arte^b commisit. Die Mercurii proximo sequenti capti sunt per dictum dominum Mowntagw cum suis dominus Edmundus Fysh, miles, nuper scissor Eboraci, Bernardus de la Mare, dominus Roos, dominus Hungarford, dominus Phillippus Wentworth, Will-elmus Penyngton, Husy miles; qui omnes decapitati sunt.

Deliberata sunt in breve domino de Mowntagw castra de Langeley p^o Tawne turris de Exham, castrum etiam de Bywell. In quo quidem castro inventum est le helmet regis Henrici cum corona et gladio et faleris dicti Henrici. Et quomodo aut quo ipse evasit, novit Deus, in cujus manu corda sunt regum.

Deliberatum est etiam regi Edwardo castrum de Shipton in Crawen.

Quintodecimo decimo^a die mensis Maii apud Exham decapitati sunt dux Somersett, Edmundus Fitzhu miles, Bradshaw, Wauter Hunt, Blac Jakis.

Decimo septimo die mensis Maii apud Novum Castrum decapitati sunt dominus de Hungarford, dominus Roos, dominus Thomas Fynderne, Edwardus de la Mare, Nicholaus Massam.

Apud Medelham xviiij die mensis Maii decapitati sunt dominus Philippus Wentworth, Willelmus Penyngton, Warde de Topeliff, Oliverus Wentworth, Willelmus Spilar, Thomas Hunt, le foteman regis Henrici.

Apud Eboracum xxv^o die mensis Maii decapitati sunt dominus Thomas Husye, Thomas Gosse, Robertus Merfyn, Johannes Buttlere, Rogerus Water, janitor regis Henrici, Thomas Fenwyke, Robertus Coefeld, Willelmus Bryte, Willelmus Dawson, Johannes Chapman.

Apud Eboracum xxviiij die mensis Maii decapitati sunt Johannes Elderbek, Ricardus Cawerne, Johannes Rosell, Robertus Conquerore. Interim etiam captus est ille armiger Treilboz et decapitatus.

Quibus peractis, dominus de Mowntagw factus est Comes de Northumberland. Capta sunt tunc castra de Bamburgh et Dunstanburgh cum ceteris et redacta in possessionem Regis Edwardi; et dominus Radulphus Greye cum ceteris illic inventis capitalem accepit sententiam, capite ejus pontem Londoniarum adornante in vertice quasi lancee.

Et sic invalescente brachio regis Edwardi et principatum per regnum obtinente pene cassata est fortitudo et milicia regis Henrici.

^c Rivers, of course, is the name, but the spelling in the MS. is doubtful.

Sextus, nuper rex Anglie dictus, et publice per Chepam London. cum aliis secum captis, ductus usque ad Turrim London. ibique honorifice commendatus custodie mansit.

Hae insuper estate orta lite inter regem Francie et fratrem ejus commota sunt bella, et Dei gracia infra breve sedata.

Hoc quoque anno circiter festum Assumpeionis beatissime Marie semper Virginis misit dominus Papa, Paulus Secundus, bullam suam in Angliam, insinuans prelatis Anglie heresim illam pestifere asserentem quod Christus publice mendicavit esse antiquitus a Romanis pontificibus cum suis consiliis damnatam et eam pro damnata universe (?)^a declarandam et conculcandam.

Hoc etiam anno multitudo latronum in variis Anglie partibus debachans multas ecclesias et alios legios regis spoliavit. Francigene quoque cum aliis adversariis regni Anglie per mare prevalentes, Angligenis damna multimoda intulerunt.

Isto quoque anno, circiter festum Sancte Scolastice Virginis peperit regina Elizabeth Regi Edwardo filiam, vocatam Elizabeth.

Anno Domini 1467, in ebdomada Pentecostes venit in Angliam bastardus Burgundie dimicaturus certamine singulari cum domino Antonio, domino de Scales; factisque in Smythfeld, London, barris et tentoriis, &c., in festo Sancti Barnabe, ingressi locum dictum quasi ludentes congressi cito cessaverunt. Et alii quidam post eos inibi congressi immunes a plaga recesserunt.

Hoc anno pax per treugas facta est inter Anglos ex parte una et Gallos, Britannos atque Scottos ex parte altera. Abundabant tunc in Anglia furta, homicidia et mala multa. Hoc etiam anno peperit Regina Elizabeth Regi Edwardo secundam filiam. Hoc quoque anno circiter festum Sancti Michaelis, et diu post, facta est gravis valde inundacio pluviarum impediens agricolas, itinerantes magnis periculis aggravans, &c. Venti etiam tunc horrendi acciderunt, submergentes naves, arbores et domos evertentes.

In principio quadragesime istius anni solute sunt treuge inter nos et Francigenas.

^a "vn3," MS.

Anno Domini 1468 concessit parleamentum domino Regi duas quintasdecimas, et convocatus clerus concessit unam decimam, et etiam nobilia ^a sacerdotum, que raro aut nunquam ad felicem per-tingunt effectum. Hoc anno etiam Thomas Coke, mercator et miles, captus est, pretensa prodicione contra eum, et graviter multatus, receptus est in gratiam. Thomas Plummer etiam, mercator et miles, accusatus de prodicione, satisfactione prehabita, ad gratiam regis rediit.

Hoc anno, circiter festum Sancti Johannis Baptiste, transfretavit Margareta soror Regis Edwardi et uxor ducis Burgundie effecta est.

Hoc etiam anno Comes de Wircester multa laude digna peregit in Hibernia, et castrum forte ^b in Wallia per dominum Harbard ^c captum est, et dominus Ricardus Tunstall cum ceteris ibi inventis captus est et in Turri London. clausus, qui tamen in breve gratiam a rege consecutus est. Duo nobiles ex illic captis decollati sunt.

Hoc anno dominus Antonius Scales, dominus Walterus Blownt, tunc dictus dominus de Mowtjoye, circiter festum Translacionis Sancti Edwardi Confessoris, cum multis milibus armatorum, naves ingressi et tempestatibus magnis turbati, nichil proficientes, in Angliam cum dedecore redierunt.

Hoc insuper anno circiter octavas Epiphanie ———^d Cowrteneye Comes Devonie et dominus de Moleners sive de Hungerford convicti super prodicione decollati sunt.

Hoc quoque anno peperit Regina Elizabeth Regi Edwardo terciam filiam.

Anno Domini 1469, circiter festum Sancte Trinitatis, surrexit quidam, nomine Robin of Redisdale cui associati sunt multi, quasi petitionarii petentes multa corrigi in regno. Contra hos circiter festum Translacionis Sancti Thome Martiris collegit paulatim rex Edwardus exercitum, volens eis occurrere.

^a So in MS., apparently for mobilia, though the same error occurs in a marginal note.

^b Harlech.

^c William lord Herbert.

^d Blank in MS.

Et cito post eum surrexit alter, nomine Robin of Holdernes, cum complicibus suis, petens Comitatum Northumbrie restitui legitimo heredi; quem captum fecit comes pro tunc Northumbrie decollari, et dispersi sunt congregati sui.

Hoc etiam anno in vigilia Sancti Jacobi Apostoli, facto conflictu militum et belligerorum borealium contra dominum Harberd cum suis Wallensibus, ceciderunt hinc et inde multi; et dominus Harberd cum duobus fratribus suis captus est, et infra breve apud Northampton decapitatus est. Ille W. Harberd, gravissimus et oppressor et spoliator ecclesiasticorum et aliorum multorum per annos multos, hanc tandem justi Dei judicio pro suis sceleribus et nequiciis recepit mercedem. Die Sabbati proximo ante Assumptionem beatissime semper Virginis Marie captus est Dominus de Rywans cum domino Johanne filio suo, et juxta castrum de Kelingworth pariter decollati sunt.

Anno Domini millesimo lxx^o, circiter festum Nativitatis Beate Marie regressi sunt in Angliam dux Clarencie, comes de Warwic, cum multis aliis, qui paulo ante per regem Edwardum in Franciam propter suas rebelliones effugati fuerant, et in Devonia applicantes exercitum colligerunt. Edwardus autem, videns eorum audaciam, fugit cum paucis in Flandriam, ubi a duce Burgundie honorifice est susceptus. Et in festo Sancte Fidis Virginis dux Clarencie, frater Regis Edwardi, et comes de Warwic, cum ceteris dominis, regem Henricum de Turri London educentes, regali apparatu indutum per Chepam usque ad palacium episcopi London. perduxerunt. Hoc anno Cantigene consueta nequicia agitati insurgunt et multos in Sowthwerk, London. spoliant, et infra breve recesserunt.

His diebus captus est ille trux carnifex et hominum decollator horridus, comes de Wiecester, et in Turri London. incarceratus, et in breve prope dictam turrin decapitatus, et apud Fratres Predicatores juxta Ludgate obscure sepultus. Interim, circiter festum Sancti Edwardi Martiris, in quadragesima, rediit in Angliam rex Edwardus, et in breve, recepto duce Clarencie ad gratiam, circumivit et congregavit multos; et in Cena Domini London. pacifice cum duobus fratribus suis et magno comitatu ingressus est. Tunc fama volante quod comes de Warwic cum suo exercitu adventaret, rex Edwardus cum suo exercitu contra eum in Sabbato Sancto Pasche properavit, et in aurora Sanctissime diei Pasche (heu et proh dolor!) inito certamine juxta villam Barnett, ceciderunt hinc et inde multi; et comes de Warwic, cum fratre suo, et multis aliis dominis et nobilibus cum plebanis, ibi interfectus est; et corpora dicti comitis et fratris sui perducta London., in ecclesia Sancti Pauli nuda jacuerunt publice aliquandiu, et postea sepulture comendata sunt.

Anno Domini 1471^o, circiter festum Sancti Georgii, [Rex],^a audito quod Regina Margareta cum Edwardo filio suo et aliis dominis et proceribus multis in partibus occiduis Anglorum applicuisset, et quod multi ad eam confluerent, cum suo exercitu etiam adversus eos festinavit, et juxta Tewkisberi acriter in eos insiliens multos trucidavit, et quosdam nobiles ibi captos decollavit. Nomina precipuorum ibi interfectorum sunt hec:—Edwardus filius Regine Margarete, comes Devonie, dominus Johannes de Somersete, dominus Johannes Wenloc, Henricus recorder de Bristow, cum multis aliis. Nomina decollatorum ibidem sunt hec: dux de Somersete, prior domus Sancti Johannis in Smythfeld, London., dominus Hunfredus Awdelaye, cum multis aliis.

Margareta olim Regina ibi capta, cum uxore filii sui, et London. in curru deducta et in custodiam tradita est. Creati sunt statim post istud bellum plures quam xl^a milites; et Henricus nuper Rex reponitur in Turim London., et in Vigilia Ascensionis Dominice, ibidem feliciter moriens, per Tamisiam navicula usque ad abbatiam de Cheltesye deductus, ibi sepultus est.

Cancigene cum bastardo Fawcunbrigge et nautis ejus insurgentes, insultus iterum fecerunt in Londonienses graviore quam solito et walvas porte nove super pontem London. cum domibus quibusdam adjacentibus combusserunt, et similiter alias juxta Algate succenderunt. Sed per dominum Antonium de Scales et dominum Duraste cum civibus London. viriliter eos aggredientibus plurimi eorum interfecti sunt, et quidam capti et reliqui in fugam versi sunt; et bastardus predictus cum suis predonibus et piratis et navibus recessit. Et Rex Edwardus feria tertia Rogacionum London. adveniens cum potenti exercitu, extra civitatem aldermannos multos in milites creavit; et in die Assensionis Domini ad vesperam Rex Edwardus cum suo exercitu ad Caneigenas corrigendos iter arripuit: et videntes se insufficientes ad resistendum ei, subdiderunt se ei. Et eos Rex et bastardum predictum cum multis aliis recepit in gratiam; alios autem maleficos convictos capitali damnavit sententia. Et ad Westmonasterium reversus ibi festum Pentecostes celebravit.

II.—Christopher Margrave of Baden, pp. 133, 136.

With regard to this person and his wife Cecily, Dr. von Weech of Carlsruhe has favoured me with the following particulars :—

Margrave Christopher II., of Baden, son of Margrave Bernard III., was born after his father's death, on the 26th Feb. 1537. In the division of territory with his brother, Margrave Philibert, in 1556, he received the lands of Baden in the duchy of Luxembourg, and became the founder of the separate line of Baden at Rodemachern. He took part with the army of Philip II. of Spain in the war with France, and fought at the battle of St. Quentin. In 1561 he made a journey to Sweden, and there was betrothed to Cecilia, daughter of Gustavus Wasa, and sister of King Eric XIV. Hereupon in the service of Sweden he took part in the war with Denmark in 1563, in command of a body of German horse. In November 1564 his marriage with the Princess Cecilia took place at Stockholm, with whom he thereupon departed to his possessions in the Netherlands, and took up his abode at Rodemachern. In the year 1565 he and his bride paid a visit to Queen Elizabeth in England; but he himself remained at her court only a short time, leaving his bride behind him alone in straitened circumstances. The latter, on the 17th Sept. 1565, gave birth to Prince Edward Fortunatus. To enable her to continue her expensive abode at the English Court, the Queen, on the 22nd Nov. 1565, granted the Margrave a pension of 2,000 French crowns of the sun, which was paid to him every year in quarterly payments out of the Treasury at Westminster. But this contribution was not sufficient for the Margravine's expenditure at Court. She contracted serious debts, and the Margrave accordingly came again to London in 1566 to take her away. The creditors, however, took notice of his object, and detained him as a prisoner. Only when the Queen gave security for him did he venture to depart.

Margrave Christopher died at Rodemachern on the 2nd August, 1575. Margravine Cecilia did not die till 1627.
